NEW MARKET GOES WELL, DESPITE MISUNDERSTANDING

Street Market Downtown Drew Some of Trade This Morning But Producers Were Sold Out By 8 O'clock—Street Marketing to be Discontinued.

Misunderstanding in regard to the location of Kingston's public market caused a smaller attendance of buyers and sellers at the opening of the new market on Field Court this morning, but those who attended were well satisfied and everything had been sold by 8 o'clock. The misunderstanding caused a number of people to go to the Steichtown ferry, but street marketing there will be discontinued now that the public market has been opened at Field Court.

Summer hotel and boarding house proprietors, who are extensive buyers of fresh farm produce, appeared with their automobiles and auto trucks at the new market and were large buyers. They and the buyers who came to Kingston for their produce to shop around among farmers in the different sections or to visit half a dozen villages where there is not a public market.

A number of the hotel and boarding house buyers were from different sections of the Catskill Mountain region, and some were from the numerous hotels and houses within a short distance of Kingston. In order to get fresh produce many of the large hotels and houses have been buying early in the season in New York city, but since local produce has been coming in market they have come to Kingston daily to make their purchases. The lack of a market has compelled many of them to shop around the farms nearby, but the results have been not satisfactory. The new market makes marketing much simpler for them and also for the seller.

Today's offerings at the public market included berries, apples, all kinds of vegetables and poultry. They were sold readily and quickly transferred to the motor trucks, automobiles and wagons of the buyers, who were on their way home before some of the local buyers appeared on the scene. Local buyers included a number of retailers besides large users of produce, such as hotels and boarding houses. A statement by one local hotel proprietor that the market was held at too early an hour because Kingston hotels and boarding houses could not determine before 8 or 9 o'clock what they would serve for dinner was met by one seller with the question whether Kingston hotels and boarding houses could not make up their minds before that time just as out of town hotels and boarding houses do.

The numerous hotels and boarding houses within a few miles from Kingston, whose proprietors are unable to raise all the produce needed and cannot spare the time to shop in half a dozen different places for what they need, will be good patrons of the market. As they remain open long after the larger hotels and houses at the big summer resort towns in the Catskills and the Shawangunks, there will be a continuing demand for farm produce which will be both for their benefit and the benefit of the producer as well as for the Kingston consumer. The regular dealer will have a greater variety and better quality of produce from which to select.

With misunderstanding removed as to the location of the public market, tomorrow morning's offerings at the market will represent fully the variety of fresh produce which buyers can procure.

The wholesale market quotations which prevailed this morning follow:

Blackberries—20 cents quart.
Live Chickens—Broilers, 35 cents pound.
Green Beans—$2 bushel.
Apples—70 cents basket.
Cabbage—$8 for 100 heads.
Beets—40 cents a dozen bunches.
Cucumbers—$5 for 100 of firsts; $2.50 for 100 of seconds.
Potatoes—$1.60 bushel.
Rhubarb—35 cents a dozen bunches.
Corn—$3 a hundred ears.

There was a big demand for apples at the market this morning. Commissioner Moyle stated to The Freeman that he expected 2,000 ears of corn for Wednesday's market. The market is open to retailers to purchase their supplies as well as wholesalers.

Bregman Lost Suit.
This morning Judge Schirick handed down a decision in the action brought by Louis Bregman against Charles Wierbach, finding no cause of action and dismissing the complaint. The case was tried on Wednesday evening in city court. Frank W. Brooks appeared for Bregman and V. B. Van Wagoner for Wierbach, who has a candy factory here. The action was brought by Bregman to recover $102.74 on the ground that Wierbach had made a contract with him to take the ice in the Bregman ice house on Hasbrouck avenue.

Smiths Have Hearing.
Henry Arthur and Silas Smith were taken before Justice of the Peace Roy Krom at High Falls Monday afternoon and given a hearing on a charge of burglary in having entered and robbed premises in that place and vicinity. They waived examination and were held to await the action of the grand jury. The three Smith boys were brought back to town where they joined William Smith, previously held for the grand jury, he being a brother to Henry and a cousin to Arthur and Silas.

RONDOUT MARKET IS ABOLISHED

Police Department Closed Up Market on Downtown Streets and All Trading Must be Done at Field Court Public Market.

With the opening of the public market on Field Court this morning, Chief of Police J. Allan Wood sent Sergeant Phinney and an officer to close up the downtown market and in the future no marketing will be allowed on the downtown streets.

For a number of years farmers and producers have conducted a public market at the corner of the Strand and Hasbrouck avenue, where the wholesale and retail produce dealers of the city could obtain their supplies. The market was also patronized by the peddlers who loaded up their wagons early in the morning at the market before taking up their routes throughout the city.

The city authorities will centralize all public market activities at the Field Court market.

There were but few people aware of the market downtown except the early risers, as the market was sold out by 7 o'clock at the latest each morning. Big auto and wagon trucks loaded with produce from the nearby farms would drive downtown early and park their vehicles at the curb on the Strand and lower Hasbrouck avenue, and for an hour or so that section of the city would present an unusual busy scene.

The wholesale dealers of the city would also load up their auto trucks with oranges, bananas and other fruit and vegetables and drive to the market so that the street peddlers could make their purchases there.

Chief Wood, when questioned over the telephone, stated that the downtown market was closed this morning and would be kept closed, and all those in the habit of patronizing the downtown market should keep in mind that fact and get their supplies at the market on Field Court in the future.

ASPHALT DUTY NOW UNDER FIRE

Same Group That Knocked Out of Fordney Tariff Opposes It, by on Road Making Material as Likely to Defeat Good Roads Program.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 19.—The tariff fight in the house went into the final round today when good roads advocates took up the cudgels against the Fordney bill.

Under the pending bill, asphalt is placed on the dutiable list, while previous tariff bills have carried this commodity on the free list.

It was claimed by those favoring road construction that the duty imposed would add millions to the cost of road building now planned by the several states and would defeat the purposes of federal financial aid to highway improvements.

In a general way the ranks of those opposed to the asphalt duty were made up of those who defeated the tariff duty on petroleum oil. One of the strongest arguments used against this duty was that it would halt development of motor transportation and the use of tractor farm machinery by increasing the cost of gasoline.

Classing duties on oil and on asphalt as hostile to construction of good roads and further development of motor transportation systems as adjuncts to road building, the rural members of the house lined up in opposition and their attacks today on the committee recommendation were sharp and vigorous.

Action on the asphalt item will clear the way for the batch of committee amendments to the bill, numbering more than 200.

Four major items of the bill have been disposed of by open action in the house. These were hides, which were taken from the free list and made dutiable at 15 per cent; chemical dyes, on which the three year embargo subject to control of the tariff commission was permitted to stand; oils which were taken from the dutiable list and put on the free list; and cotton, which was taken from the free list and made dutiable at 15 per cent.

Included among the committee changes were many affecting rates written into the bill by the committee. An attempt by the Republican of the committee to railroad these changes through the house without submitting them to the Democrats on the committee was halted by Democratic leaders and they were submitted to the Democrats for consideration.

Hog Prices on the Mend.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Pittsburgh, Pa., July 19.—Hog prices are steadily moving upward and there was a strong jump of 35 cents per hundred weight here today, best hogs selling at $11.85 for medium weight grades. This is a gain of $1.25 per hundred weight in the last ten days and $2 in the last sixty days. A leading packing house head here declares there is a strong demand for hog products of all kinds, especially pork, and that runs throughout the country are very light.

Pair at Shokan.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Shokan Reformed Church will hold a fair August 24 in the church basement. A large variety of useful and fancy articles will be for sale and light refreshments such as sandwiches, cake, ice cream and fruit punch will be served.

JAPAN KEEN FOR DISARMAMENT

Says Hanihara—National Sentiment, However, Seems To Be That Japan Must Be Left Pretty Much To Herself In Dealing With Shantung, Yape and Other Matters In Far East.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Tokyo, July 19.—Japan will put no obstacles in the way of world disarmament, according to Under Foreign Secretary Hanihara.

"Japan wants disarmament as much as America or Great Britain," declared this official today. "The people of the Japanese Empire are backing this movement and they have high hopes of accomplishing something definite. Our participation is already assured."

Questioned concerning the Japanese attitude on Far East problems Mr. Hanihara would not talk.

The foreign office official was not so reticent regarding world disarmament. Continuing his remarks upon this subject he said:

"For a long time Viscount Uchida (the present foreign secretary) and Viscount Kato have been indicating their willingness for a conference such as President Harding suggested."

There is a current of opinion in official circles that the conference will not take up the Shantung question. At the same time it was declared that even if this issue were brought up it was unlikely that a satisfactory agreement could be reached.

(Councillor Hayashi of the Japanese foreign office declared in an exclusive interview with the International News Service yesterday that he considered Shantung a question to be settled between Japan and China by direct negotiation. He was of the opinion that it would be brought up before the Washington conference convened.)

In foreign office circles it is said that Japan may refuse to discuss all matters that are already covered by treaties.

The newspaper Jiji quotes an anonymous general as saying that Japan will not do anything that will harm her interests but she may be relied upon to obey to letter any agreements reached at Washington. "We believe that the questions of Yape and Shantung were brought up as the result of a misunderstanding," said the Asahi. The writer went on to say that this misunderstanding may have resulted from "America's invasion of the Asiatic field."

The Nippon Demhon says that if Japan goes into the conference dissatisfied she may be relied upon to fight for her own interests. This newspaper hoped that there would be a free exchange of views in order to minimize the possibility of misunderstanding.

There was an important conference at the foreign office on Monday when the chief of the Asiatic bureau of the ministry made a report. The communication of Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador to America, dealing with America's explanation of the scope and character of the proposed conference was canvassed.

The foreign office is maintaining the utmost secrecy regarding the Washington negotiations. None of the officials would admit that a formal negotiator had been received from Washington giving detailed information in reply to Japan's interrogation.

The conservative section of the press takes the view that the conference will give Japan and the other interested powers a splendid chance to settle the racial and immigration questions. The Asahi in treating on this phase of the issue said that when the involved powers were freed of racial misunderstanding the chances of war would be lessened and intercourse could be free.

The Asahi speaks optimistically of the conference, expressing the belief that results will be achieved affecting Manchuria, Mongolia, China and Siberia. The same newspaper proposed, however, that Japan enter into direct negotiations with China before the Washington conference is held. It stated that the government knows that the Pekin government is willing to do this.

SACRAMENTAL WINES.

New Ruling Expected to Make It Easier to Procure Them.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 19.—Attorney General Daugherty will be asked to reconsider an opinion by his predecessor, which outlawed wholesale liquor dealers. This became known today after a formal appeal by representatives of the clergy was filed, asking for a review of the opinion as far as it relates to the distribution of sacramental wines.

The entire question of the status of wholesale liquor dealers, therefore under the so-called "permissive" provisions of the Volstead law, will be reopened.

The clergy, representing many denominations, was victorious in its criticism of present regulations. Their earnest plea that they be less restricted in obtaining sacramental wines, in required quantities for different ceremonies, won a promise today from prohibition heads for a material modification of the rules now in force.

Turtle In The Soup.

The big turtle which attracted considerable attention at the Mohican store on Wall street last week was purchased by Mr. Von Berg who conducts the Advance restaurant on Wall street and today turtle steaks and genuine turtle soup are being served at the Advance.

SENATE MUST STAY IN SESSION

Wets Find Way To Block Anti-Beer Bill Action By Lining Up With Proponents of Norris Bill, Opposed By Harding and Hoover.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 19.—"Old John Barleycorn" having unexpectedly upset the renewed efforts of senate leaders for a summer adjournment, the senate proceeded today with the consideration of the Norris bill to create a $100,000,000 federal corporation to finance agricultural exports.

A suddenly formed coalition between the senatorial "agricultural bloc" supporting the Norris bill and senators opposing the "anti-beer" bill was largely responsible for the legislative situation being turned topsy-turvy.

By voting with the agricultural senators to make the Norris bill the "unfinished business" and thereby sidetracking indefinitely the "anti-beer" bill, the "wet" senators dimmed the revived hope for an adjournment. "Dry" senators countered by serving notice that they would not agree to an adjournment until the "anti-beer" bill is acted upon finally.

The "wet" senators decided that even the so-called farmers legislation was preferable to the "dry" measure, and by helping to give the Norris bill precedence they bolstered up the opposition of the agricultural bloc to an adjournment. The administration regarded as such the senate remaining in session during the rest of the summer.

Open opposition to the Norris bill by Secretary Hoover and other administration officials renders its ultimate fate uncertain. President Harding has made it known to senate leaders that he does not approve of the measure, which the administration regards as in conflict with its policy of "less government in business."

The Norris bill provides for a federal corporation whose duty it would be—(1) to purchase farm products in this country and sell them abroad, (2) to act as agent for any person or organization dealing in farm produce in this country; and (3) to make advances to such persons or organizations for the purpose of assisting in financing the export of farm products to foreign markets.

MOTORCYCLE HIT AN AUTOMOBILE

Henry Northrup, of West New York is in the Kingston City Hospital with injuries, which while serious are not considered fatal, sustained about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon when the motorcycle he was riding ran into the rear of an automobile of the Sleightsburch hill. With Northrup was riding Clyde Davidson of West Hoboken, who escaped with bruises and a shaking up. Word of the accident was telephoned to police headquarters here and the ambulance hurried to the scene, but the injured man was conveyed to the hospital in another car just as the ambulance reached the ferry. Northrup sustained injuries to the head, but his skull was not fractured.

STREET REPAIR WORK UNDER WAY

The work of laying Willite pavement on the Strand through Ponckhockie is progressing. The pavement is being laid from Hasbrouck avenue to the first railroad crossing, and from the second railroad crossing to Albany street. The board of public works, however, after considering the matter have decided to continue the Willite on the Strand from Albany street to East Union street on North street. This will complete the connecting link of Willite from the entrance at Kingston Point Park to the Strand.

The street department has gotten Prince street, from the railroad crossing to Broadway, and Jansen avenue, from the Central Fire Station to Prince street, in readiness for laying Willite, and as soon as the Strand is completed the work will be taken up. Willite has been laid so far this season on Lucas and Washington avenues, and through Cedar street.

The work of building the sanitary sewer on Hasbrouck avenue, between Foxhall avenue and Prince street, has been started by the street department.

Gray Day for Golfers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 19.—London skies greeted the two hundred and more golfers here today for the opening qualifying round of the open championship at the Columbia Country Club. A brisk breeze in the early morning hours made weather prophets confident there would be no rain, but humidity was rather high.

IRISH PEACE CONFERENCE IN CRITICAL STAGE

With Craig Adamant as To Ulster's Rights And De Valera Committed To Independence For Whole of Ireland, Some One Must Make Concessions At Thursday's Conference or Erin Will Again Become Battlefield.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, July 19.—While a hitch admittedly has arisen in the Irish peace negotiations, hope was still running high today that a way will yet be found to bring the discordant elements of north and south Ireland together.

For the present at least, Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, has retired from the picture, leaving, he said, Eamon De Valera "president of the Irish Republic" to make what settlement he could with the British government. Craig took his cabinet and went back to Belfast.

It is looked upon as a significant and hopeful sign, however, that De Valera is remaining in London and will confer with Premier Lloyd George again on Thursday.

De Valera himself declined to comment on the situation today. He would express no opinion regarding the action of the Ulsterites in retiring from the scene. At republican headquarters, the International News Service correspondent was informed:

"It is impossible for President De Valera to accept anything but recognition as an independent nation."

Meanwhile negotiations were at a standstill today, Lloyd George conferred with the dominion premiers.

The general impression prevails that Thursday will be the decisive day, that the question of future peace or war in Ireland hangs on the decisions that will be reached when the British premier and the Irish president again go into conference.

The British press generally is treating the situation with extreme caution, although the Daily News, the Star and the Herald describe it as "critical."

The Times said:

"The language of Sir James Craig seems rigid and unyielding, but the final passages do not seem like a final word in a hopeless quest."

The Telegraph said:

"The statement is a disconcerting shock to the optimists, but it does not absolutely close the door."

The Daily News thinks that the difficulties which have arisen may develop a cabinet crisis within 48 hours.

If Lloyd George supports the views of Sir James Craig, observed the Standard, "then the negotiations die a natural death."

The Morning Post, organ of the Tory Conservatives, treated the situation somewhat ironically, saying:

"One of our conquerors," referring to De Valera's demand for self determination for Ireland, "does not request or negotiate, he demands in the name of the Irish nation."

The Post notes the fact that Lloyd George himself described De Valera as "the chieftain of a vast majority of the Irish race and himself the president of the Irish Republic."

"If the loyalists of the north refuse to join the rebels of the south," continues the Post, "then Lloyd George will ignore the loyalists and treat with the Irish chieftain—born by the way, in New York—as if he represented the Ulster loyalists also."

"It will be interesting if Lloyd George obeys and tries to terrorize the Ulster government into surrender."

"Sir James Craig has gone back, leaving the British to settle their own terms with the south, insisting only in the most absolute way the right of the people of the north to determine their own fate."

A Central News dispatch from Belfast said that the Unionist officials who had been conferring on peace in London arrived in that city this morning and expressed the belief that the policy of the Ulsterists had been generally approved. The opinion was prevalent according to the Central News, that the Ulster cabinet members could be recalled to London next week.

Donald Macdonell, Unionist member of parliament, told the International News Service correspondent that he did not believe that Sir James Craig would return to London next week.

FIRE RESIDENCE BURNS.

Fire Completely Destroys Job Hutchinson's House.

The handsome residence property owned by Job Hutchinson, and situated on the Woodstock road, near west of the Pine Grove schoolhouse, was totally destroyed by fire early Sunday morning, entailing a loss of several thousand dollars, this loss fortunately being partially covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Hutchinson had left the premises at 6 o'clock Saturday night and everything was all right then, the house was intended to take possession of his home Monday and at one o'clock Sunday morning the fire was discovered. There being no way to combat the flames, they ate through the frame building like tinder, and soon what was once a handsome building, was reduced to ruins. Mr. Hutchinson had spent a huge sum in remodeling the property and its destruction by fire is lamentable. The contents of the house including some very valuable furniture, heirlooms, were also destroyed.

HALF OF KINGSTON'S POPULATION EARNS THE MONEY FOR ALL

Census Report Shows That There are But 3,491 Girl and Women Workers Here Against 8,491 Men Engaged in Gainful Occupation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 19.—There were 11,982 persons 10 years of age and over in Kingston, N. Y., engaged in gainful occupations in 1920, constituting 44.9 per cent of the total population of the city (26,688) and 52.9 per cent of the population 10 years of age and over, the census bureau announced today.

Of the gainful workers of Kingston 8,491 or 70.9 per cent, were males and 3,491 or 29.1 per cent were females. The male gainful workers constituted 89.6 per cent of all males 10 years of age and over in 1920, while the female gainful workers constituted 28.9 per cent of all females 10 years of age and over.

CONFERENCE TO BE EXPENSIVE

Administration Feels Each Nation Should Bear Its Share As In Other International Gatherings—Britain Alone Will Have Delegation of 200.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 19.—Along with other problems connected with the proposed disarmament conference President Harding and his cabinet today had for consideration the question of bearing the burden of expense of the parley.

Congressional authorization will be necessary to secure the funds to operate the conference, and it is expected that the president will ask an appropriation for this purpose, but there is considerable doubt as to whether the administration, in these times of economy, will see fit to act as host to the invited powers.

Officials today, forecasting that the conference expense would be borne by the individual powers, pointed out that all of the Hague conferences have been paid for by the participating nations. This has also held true of the A. B. C. conference and other international parleys, including the Paris peace conference.

Expenses of the disarmament conference will be heavy, officials said, for it is expected that the delegations representing the various powers will be large. Great Britain alone is expected to send a delegation of 200 including experts, clerks, attaches. Other nations will send delegations nearly as large and it is planned to quarter each power in a separate hotel.

Should the United States bear the burden of expense of the conference it is feared that it might drag on interminably as there would be no incentive to rapid action in settling the affairs before the conference.

There are some who hold that the United States may well afford to bear all of the expenses of the conference, pointing out that it is successful and disarmament is accomplished that between $500,000 and $1,000,000 will be saved annually for this government.

Pending receipt of further word from Japan, the administration is proceeding with its plans for an exchange of views on the agenda of the conference.

Despatches from Tokio stating that Japan plans to clean up the Siberian question by the middle of August and also hopes for an early agreement with China, with regard to Shantung, were well received here and it was evident that officials felt that the final disposition of these two questions preliminary to the disarmament conference would make the work of that body much easier.

JAP MILITARISTS.

London Paper Finds Ground For Suspicion.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 19.—"The military caste of Japan is trying by might and main to persuade the people that the Washington conference is a cunningly laid trap to destroy Japan," said the Daily Express, in an editorial today.

"We are convinced that the proposal of the United States is without ulterior motive and that its sole effort is to bring world peace. If Japan refuses to participate we will be driven to the belief that she harbors designs incompatible with peace."

"We have already agreed to the conference. Furthermore we have agreed that American alarm over Japanese armaments is justified. The facts compel suspicion."

DEFENDANT GETS DIVORCE.

Adultery Alleged by Both, Wife Wins.

In the action for divorce brought by William H. Parker against Theresa A. Parker on statutory grounds, Justice Joseph Morschauer at special term, Poughkeepsie, granted an interlocutory decree to defendant instead of plaintiff. The parties were married at Poughkeepsie in June, 1916, and the issue of the marriage is William H. Parker, aged three years. Plaintiff in his complaint charged his wife with having committed adultery with a man at Maybrook, Orange county, and at Peekskill, Westchester county, at various times during 1918, 1919 and 1920. The defendant in her answer denied the allegations of wrong doing and asks for the dismissal of the complaint, and asks for a divorce on the grounds that plaintiff, William H. Parker, committed adultery with women at Poughkeepsie, Maybrook, Newburgh and in the county of Ulster. After hearing the case Justice Morschauer dismissed the complaint of the plaintiff-husband and has granted an interlocutory decree of divorce to defendant and gives her the exclusive custody of the son, William H. Parker. Brammer, Canfield & Brimmer represented William H. Parker, who was the plaintiff; Edward A. Conger for defendant; John E. Mack of counsel.

NEW MARKET GOES WELL, DESPITE MISUNDERSTANDING

Street Market Downtown Drew Some of Trade This Morning But Producers Were Sold Out By 6 O'clock—Street Marketing to be Discouraged.

Misunderstanding in regard to the location of Kingston's public market caused a smaller attendance of buyers and sellers at the opening of the new market on Field Court this morning, but those who attended were well satisfied and everything was sold by 6 o'clock. The misunderstanding caused a number of people to go to the Bleighburgh street market, but street marketing there will be discontinued now that the public market has been opened at Field Court.

Summer hotel and boarding house proprietors, who are extensive buyers of fresh farm produce, appeared with their automobiles and with trucks at the new market and were large buyers. They found it much easier to come to Kingston for their produce than to shop around among farmers in different sections or to visit half a dozen villages where there is not a public market.

A number of the hotel and boarding house buyers were from different sections of the Catskill Mountain region, and some were from the numerous hotels and houses within a short distance of Kingston. In order to get fresh farm produce many of the large hotels and houses have been buying early in the season in New York city, but since local produce has been coming in market they have come to Kingston daily to make their purchases. The lack of a market has compelled many of them to shop around the farms nearby, but the results have not been satisfactory. The new market makes marketing much simpler for them and also for the seller.

Today's offerings at the public market included berries, apples, all kinds of vegetables and poultry. They were sold readily and quickly, transferred to the motor trucks, automobiles and wagons of the buyers, who were on their way home before some of the local buyers appeared on the scene. Local buyers included a number of retailers besides large users of produce, such as hotels and boarding houses. A statement by one local hotel proprietor that the market was held at too early an hour because Kingston hotels and boarding houses could not determine before 8 or 9 o'clock what they would serve for dinner was met by one seller with the question whether Kingston hotels and boarding houses could not make up their minds before that time just as out of town hotels and boarding houses do.

The numerous hotels and boarding houses within a few miles from Kingston, whose proprietors are unable to raise all the produce needed and cannot spare the time to shop in half a dozen different places for what they need, will be good patrons of the local market. As they remain open long after the larger hotels and houses at the big summer resort towns in the Catskills and the Shawangunks, there will be a continuing demand for farm produce which will be both for their benefit and the benefit of the producer as well as for the Kingston consumer whose regular dealer will have a greater variety and better quality of produce from which to select.

With misunderstanding removed as to the location of the public market, tomorrow morning's offerings at the market will represent fully the variety of fresh produce which buyers can procure.

The wholesale market quotations which prevailed this morning follow:

Blackberries—20 cents quart.
Live Chickens—Broilers, 35 cents pound.
Green beans—$2 bushel.
Apples—70 cents basket.
Cabbage—$2 for 100 heads.
Beets—10 cents a dozen bunches.
Cucumbers—45 for 100 of flats; $2.50 for 100 of bushels.
Potatoes—$1.60 bushel.
Rhubarb—25 cents a dozen bunches.
Corn—1 1/2 a hundred ears.
There was a big demand for apples at the market this morning. Commissioner Moyle stated to The Freeman that he expected 2,000 cars of corn for Wednesday's market. The market is open to retailers to purchase their supplies as well as wholesalers.

Woman Lost Suit.
The morning Justice Schick handed down a decision in the action brought by Louis Breeman against Charles Wierbach, ending in a verdict of $100. The case was tried on Wednesday evening in city court. Frank W. Breeman appeared for Breeman, and V. M. Van Curen for Wierbach. The action was brought by Breeman to recover $100. On the ground that Wierbach had made a contract with him to take the job in the Freeman as news editor on Broadview avenue.

Woman's Sister Married.
Bert, Arthur and Miss Smith are taken before Justice of the New York State at High Falls. Mrs. Smith and her sister are owners of a large property in Kingston and are well known in the city. They were married on Wednesday evening in Kingston. The bride was Miss Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, and the groom was Bert Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Smith. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Smith. The bride and groom were accompanied by their families and friends. The reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents. The wedding was a very quiet affair.

RONDOUT MARKET IS ABOLISHED

Police Department Closed Up Market on Downtown Streets and All Trading Must be Done at Field Court Public Market.

With the opening of the public market on Field Court this morning, Chief of Police J. Allan Wood sent Sergeant Phinney and an officer to close up the downtown market and in the future no marketing will be allowed on the downtown streets.

For a number of years farmers and producers have conducted a public market at the corner of the Strand and Hasbrouck avenue, where the wholesale and retail produce dealers of the city could obtain their supplies. The market was also patronized by the peddlers who loaded up their wagons early in the morning at the market before taking up their routes throughout the city.

The city authorities will centralize all public market activities at the Field Court market.

There were but few people aware of the market downtown except the early risers, as the market was sold out by 7 o'clock at the latest each morning. Big auto and wagon trucks loaded with produce from the nearby farms would drive downtown early and park their vehicles at the curb on the Strand and lower Hasbrouck avenue, and for an hour or so that section of the city would present an unusually busy scene.

The wholesale dealers of the city would also load up their auto trucks with oranges, bananas and other fruit and vegetables and drive to the market so that the street peddlers could make their purchases there.

Chief Wood, when questioned over the telephone, was closed this morning and would be kept closed, and all those in the habit of patronizing the downtown market should keep in mind that fact and get their supplies at the market on Field Court in the future.

ASPHALT DUTY NOW UNDER FIRE

Some Group That Knocked Out of Road Making Material as Likely to Defeat Good Roads Program.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 19.—The tariff fight in the house went into the final round today when good roads advocates took up the charges against the Fordney bill.

Under the pending bill, asphalt is placed on the dutiable list, while previous tariff bills have carried this commodity on the free list.

It was claimed by those favoring road construction that the duty imposed would add millions to the cost of road building now planned by the several states and would defeat the purposes of federal financial aid to highway improvements.

In a general way the ranks of those opposed to the asphalt duty are made up of those who defeated the tariff duty on petroleum oil. One of the strongest arguments used against this duty was that it would halt development of motor transportation and the use of tractor farm machinery by increasing the cost of gasoline.

Classing duties on oil and on asphalt as hostile to construction of good roads and further development of motor transportation systems as an adjunct to railroad carriers, the rural members of the house lined up in opposition and their attacks today on the committee recommendation were sharp and vigorous.

Action on the asphalt item will clear the way for the batch of committee amendments to the bill, numbering more than 200.

Four major items of the bill have been disposed of by open action in the house. These were hides, which were taken from the free list and made dutiable at 15 per cent; chemical dyes, on which the three year embargo subject to control of the tariff commission was permitted to stand; oils which were taken from the dutiable list and put on the free list; and cotton, which was taken from the free list and made dutiable at 15 per cent on staple 1 1/2 inch in length and over.

JAPAN KEEN FOR DISARMAMENT

Says Hanabara—National Sentiment, However, Seems to Be That Japan Must Be Left Pretty Much to Herself in Dealing With Shantung, Yap and Other Matters in Far East.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Tokio, July 19.—Japan will put no obstacles in the way of world disarmament, according to Under Foreign Secretary Hanabara.

"Japan wants disarmament as much as America or Great Britain," declared this official today. "The people of the Japanese Empire are backing this movement and they have high hopes of accomplishing something definite. Our participation is already assured."

Questioned concerning the Japanese attitude on Far East problems Mr. Hanabara would not talk. The foreign office official was not so reticent regarding world disarmament. Continuing his remarks upon this subject he said:

"For a long time Viscount Uchida (the present foreign secretary) and Viscount Kato have been indicating their willingness for a conference such as President Harding suggested."

There is a current of opinion in official circles that the conference will not take up the Shantung question. At the same time it was declared that even if this issue were brought up it was unlikely that a satisfactory agreement could be reached.

(Councillor Hayashi of the Japanese foreign office declared in an exclusive interview with the International News Service yesterday that he considered Shantung a question to be settled between Japan and China by direct negotiation. He was of the opinion that it would be brought up before the Washington conference convened.)

In foreign office circles it is said that Japan may refuse to discuss all matters that are already covered by treaties.

The newspaper Jiji quotes an anonymous general as saying that Japan will not do anything that will harm her interests but she may be relied upon to obey to the letter any agreements reached at Washington.

"We believe that the questions of Yap and Shantung were brought up as the result of a misunderstanding," said the Asahi. The writer went on to say that this misunderstanding may have resulted from "America's invasion of the Asiatic field."

The Nippon Densho says that if Japan goes into the conference disarmed she may be relied upon to fight for her own interests. This newspaper hoped that there would be a free exchange of views in order to minimize the possibility of misunderstanding.

There was an important conference at the foreign office on Monday when the chief of the Asiatic bureau of the ministry made a report. The communication of Baron Shidekara, the Japanese ambassador to America, dealing with America's explanation of the scope and character of the proposed conference was canvassed.

The foreign office is maintaining the utmost secrecy regarding the Washington negotiations. None of the officials would admit that a formal rejoinder had been received from Washington giving detailed information in reply to Japan's interrogation.

The conservative section of the press takes the view that the conference will give Japan and the other interested powers a splendid chance to settle the racial and immigration questions. The Asahi, in treating on this phase of the issue said that when the involved powers were freed of racial misunderstanding the chances of war would be lessened and intercourse could be free.

The Asahi speaks optimistically of the conference, expressing the belief that results will be achieved affecting Manchuria, Mongolia, China and Siberia. The same newspaper proposed, however, that Japan enter into direct negotiations with China before the Washington conference is held. It stated that the government knows that the Pekin government is willing to do this.

SACRAMENTAL WIVES

New Rating Expected to Make It Easier to Franchise Them.

Washington, July 19.—The Attorney General yesterday was asked to reconsider an opinion by his predecessor, which outlawed wholesale liquor dealers. This became known today after a formal appeal by representatives of the clergy was filed, asking for a review of the opinion as far as it relates to the distribution of sacramental wines.

SENATE MUST STAY IN SESSION

Wells Find Way To Block Anti-Beer Bill Action By Limiting Up With Proponents of Norris Bill, Opposed By Harding and Hoover.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 19.—"Old John Barleycorn" having unexpectedly upset the renewed efforts of senate leaders for a summer adjournment, the senate proceeded today with the consideration of the Norris bill to create a $100,000,000 federal corporation to finance agricultural exports.

A suddenly formed coalition between the senatorial "agricultural bloc" supporting the Norris bill and senators opposing the "anti-beer bill" was largely responsible for the legislative situation being turned topsy-turvy.

By voting with the agricultural senators to make the Norris bill the "unfinished business" and thereby sidetracking indefinitely the "anti-beer" bill, the "wet" senators dimmed the revived hope for an adjournment. "Dry" senators countered by serving notice that they would not agree to an adjournment until the "anti-beer bill" is acted upon finally.

The "wet" senators decided that even the so-called farmers legislation was preferable to the "dry" measure, and by helping to give the Norris bill precedence they bolstered up the opposition of the agricultural bloc to an adjournment. There is every prospect now of the senate remaining in session during the rest of the summer.

Open opposition to the Norris bill by Secretary Hoover and other administration officials renders the ultimate fate uncertain. President Harding has made it known to senate leaders that he does not approve of the measure, which the administration regards as in conflict with its policy of "less government in business."

The Norris bill provides for a federal corporation whose duty it would be—(1) to purchase farm products in this country and sell them abroad, (2) to act as agent for any person or organization dealing in farm products in this country; and (3) to make advances to such persons or organizations for the purpose of assisting in financing the export of farm products to foreign markets.

MOTORCYCLE HIT AN AUTOMOBILE

Henry Northrup of West New York is in the Kingston City Hospital with injuries which while serious are not considered fatal, sustained about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon when the motorcycle he was riding ran into the rear of an automobile on the Bleighburgh hill. With Northrup was riding Clyde Davidson of West Hoboken, who escaped with bruises and a shaking up. Word of the accident was telephoned to police headquarters here and the ambulance hurried to the scene, but the injured man was conveyed to the hospital in another car just as the ambulance reached the ferry. Northrup sustained injuries to the head, but his skull was not fractured.

STREET REPAIR WORK UNDER WAY

The work of laying Willite pavement on the Strand through Ponckhockie is progressing. The pavement is being laid from Hasbrouck avenue to the first railroad crossing, and from the second railroad crossing to Albany street. The board of public works, however, after considering the matter have decided to continue the Willite on the Strand from Albany street to East Canon street on North street. This will complete the connecting link of Willite from the entrance at Kingston Point Park to the Strand.

The street department has gotten Prince street, from the railroad crossing to Broadway, and James avenue, from the Central Fire Station to Prince street, in readiness for laying Willite, and as soon as the Strand is completed the work will be taken up. Willite has been laid so far this season on Lucas and Washington avenues, and through Cedar street.

The work of building the sanitary sewer on Hasbrouck avenue, between Ponckhockie avenue and Prince street, has been started by the street department.

IRISH PEACE CONFERENCE IN CRITICAL STAGE

With Craig Adamant As To Ulster's Rights and De Valera Committed To Independence For Whole of Ireland, Some One Must Make Concessions At Thursday's Conference or Erin Will Again Become Battleground.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, July 19.—While a hitch admittedly has arisen in the Irish peace negotiations, hope was still running high today that a way will yet be found to bring the discordant elements of north and south Ireland together.

For the present at least, Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, has retired from the picture, leaving, he said, Eamon De Valera "president of the Irish Republic" to make what settlement he could with the British government. Craig took his cabinet and went back to Belfast.

It is looked upon as a significant and hopeful sign, however, that De Valera is remaining in London and will confer with Premier Lloyd George again on Thursday.

De Valera himself declined to comment on the situation today. He would express no opinion regarding the action of the Ulsterites in retiring from the scene. At republican headquarters, the International News Service correspondent was informed:

"It is impossible for President De Valera to accept anything but recognition as an independent nation."

Meanwhile negotiations were at a standstill today. Lloyd George conferred with the dominion premiers. The general impression prevails that Thursday will be the decisive day, that the question of future peace or war in Ireland hangs on the decisions that will be reached when the British premier and the Irish president again go into conference.

The British press generally is treating the situation with extreme caution, although the Daily News, the Star and the Herald describe it as "critical."

The Times said:

"The language of Sir James Craig seems rigid and unyielding, but the final passage does not seem like a final word in a hopeless quest."

The Telegraph said:

"The statement is a disagreeable shock to the optimists, but it does not absolutely close the door."

The Daily News thinks that the difficulties which have arisen may develop a cabinet crisis within 48 hours.

Lloyd George supports the views of Sir James Craig, observed the Standard, "then the negotiations die a natural death."

The Morning Post, organ of the Tory Conservatives, organizes the situation somewhat ironically, saying:

"One of our conquerors," referring to De Valera's demand for self-determination for Ireland, "does not request or negotiate, he demands in the name of the Irish nation."

The Post notes the fact that Lloyd George himself described De Valera as "the chief of a vast majority of the Irish race and himself the president of the Irish Republic."

"If the loyalists of the north refuse to join the rebels of the south," continues the Post, "then Lloyd George will ignore the loyalists and treat with the Irish chieftain—born, by the way, in New York—as if he represented the Ulster loyalists also."

"It will be interesting if Lloyd George obeys and tries to terrorize the Ulster government into surrender."

"Sir James Craig has gone back, leaving the British to settle their own terms with the south, insisting only in the most absolute way the right of the people of the north to determine their own fate."

A Central News dispatch from Belfast said that the Unionist officials who had been conferring on peace in London arrived in that city this morning and expressed the belief that the policy of the Ulsterites had been generally approved. The opinion was prevalent according to the Central News, that the Ulster cabinet members would be recalled to London next week.

HALF OF KINGSTON'S POPULATION EARNS THE MONEY FOR ALL

Census Report Shows That There are But 3,491 Girl and Women Workers Here Against 8,491 Men Engaged in Gainful Occupation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 19.—There were 11,982 persons 10 years of age and over in Kingston, N. Y., engaged in gainful occupations in 1920 constituting 44.9 per cent of the total population of the city (26,688) and 52.9 per cent of the population 10 years of age and over, the census bureau announced today.

Of the gainful workers of Kingston 5,491 or 70.9 per cent, were males and 3,491 or 29.1 per cent were females. The male gainful workers constituted 80.6 per cent of all males 10 years of age and over in 1920, while the female gainful workers constituted 28.9 per cent of all females 10 years of age and over.

CONFERENCE TO BE EXPENSIVE

Administration Feels Each Nation Should Bear Its Share As In Other International Gatherings—Britain Alone Will Have Delegation of 200.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 19.—Along with other problems connected with the proposed disarmament conference President Harding and his cabinet today had for consideration the question of bearing the burden of expense of the party.

Congressional authorization will be necessary to secure the funds to operate the conference, and it is expected that the president will ask an appropriation for this purpose, but there is considerable doubt as to whether the administration, in these times of economy, will see fit to act as host to the invited powers.

Officials today, forecasting that the conference expense would be borne by the individual powers, pointed out that all of the Hague conferences have been paid for by the participating nations. This has also held true of the A. B. C. conference and other international gatherings, including the Paris peace conference.

Expenses of the disarmament conference will be heavy, officials said, for it is expected that the delegations representing the various powers will be large. Great Britain alone is expected to send a delegation of 200 including experts, clerks, attaches. Other nations will send delegations nearly as large and it is planned to quarter each power in a separate hotel.

Should the United States bear the burden of expense of the conference it is feared that it might drag on interminably as there would be no incentive to rapid action in settling the affairs before the conference.

There are some who hold that the United States may well afford to bear all of the expenses of the conference, pointing out that if it is successful and disarmament is accomplished that between $500,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 will be saved annually for this government.

Pending receipt of further word from Japan, the administration is proceeding with its plans for an exchange of views on the agenda of the conference.

Dispatches from Tokio stating that Japan plans to clean up the Siberian question by the middle of August and also hopes for an early agreement with China, with regard to Shantung, were well received here and it was evident that officials felt that the final disposition of these two questions preliminary to the disarmament conference would make the work of that body much easier.

JAP MILITARISTS

London Paper Flocks Ground For Suspicion.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, July 19.—"The military caste of Japan is trying by night and main to persuade the people that the Washington conference is a cunningly laid trap to destroy Japan," said the Daily Express, in an editorial today.

"We are convinced that the proposal of the United States is without ulterior motive and that its sole object is to bring world peace," the paper continues. "Japan refuses to participate in it, but is driven to the belief that the harbors dangers incompatible with peace."

"We have already agreed to the conference. Furthermore, we have seen that American alarm over Japanese armaments is justified. The facts compel acquiescence."

DEFENDANT GETS DIVORCE

Adultery Alleged by Bosh, Wife Wins.

In the action for divorce brought by William H. Parker against Theresa A. Parker on statutory grounds, Justice Joseph Morschauer at specific term, Poughkeepsie, granted an interlocutory decree to defendant instead of plaintiff. The parties were married at Poughkeepsie in June, 1916, and the issue of the marriage is William R. Parker, aged three years. Plaintiff in his complaint charged his wife with having committed adultery with a man at Maybrook, Orange county, and at Peekskill, Westchester county, at various times during 1918, 1919 and 1920. The defendant in her answer denied the allegations of wrong doing and asked for the dismissal of the complaint, and asks for a divorce on the grounds that plaintiff, William H. Parker, committed adultery with women at Poughkeepsie, Maybrook, Newburgh and in the county of Ulster. After hearing the case Justice Morschauer dismissed the complaint of the plaintiff and granted a divorce to defendant and gives her the exclusive custody of the son, William R. Parker. Plaintiff, Charles A. Parker, represented William H. Parker, who was the plaintiff, Edward A. Conner for defendant; John E. Black of counsel.

POOR YEAR FOR NEW YORK CROPS

New York farmers have a double burden to carry this year. Not only do the prices of farm products average about half of what they were at this time last year but the present indications are that the crops will produce only 81 per cent as much per acre as the average during the last ten years. Crops are poorer in this state than they are in any other part of the country except Northern New England where the drought has been even more severe than it has been in this state. In every state east of the Mississippi river except Illinois crops are poorer than usual, but west of the Mississippi conditions are better, and in the country as a whole crops are only 84 per cent below the usual average at this time of the year.

In this state the spring weather was favorable through April, but from the first of May until the 25th of June, there was less than half the usual amount of rain. The last of June the drought was at least partially relieved over the larger part of the state but in several of the counties bordering Lake Ontario crops were still suffering in the second week in July. While practically all important New York crops except corn are in poorer condition than usual at this time of the year, the damage to hay has been most severe. According to John B. Shepard of the U. S. Bureau of Crop Estimates, the yield per acre will be one-fourth less than usual and the lightest in twenty years. In those sections where the crop is poorest, the dairy herds are being reduced. On account of the drought the average condition of pastures on July 1st was 15 per cent lower than in any July first in twenty years. This is causing a reduction in the flow of milk and farmers are compelled to feed more than the usual amounts of green forage and grain. Spring grain has also been badly hurt. Although oats had a good start, they are now expected to yield only 20 bushels per acre. The average for the last ten years has been 33 bushels.

The low price of potatoes which prevailed last spring does not seem to have caused as great a reduction in the acreage as many people expected. In the less important potato sections, where few farmers grow more than an acre or two, there has been a marked decrease in the acreage, but this has been a large extent offset by slight increases in those counties which make a specialty of the crop. For the state as a whole the decrease appears to have been only 3 per cent. Corn flourishes with warm nights, and although in some localities it has been suffering from the dry weather, the condition of the crop was 3 per cent higher than usual on July 1st, and there has probably been a substantial improvement since the first of the month.

TEN GONE AFTER JAIL DISORDERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 19.—Ten convicts were missing today at the Western Penitentiary following the riot of over 1,000 prisoners Monday afternoon and the destruction of several prison buildings by fire, entailing an estimated loss of $750,000. One prisoner was burned to death. A dozen prisoners and guards were seriously wounded in the three hour battle during the rioting and two score more received lesser injuries. The interior of the cell divisions of the prison was badly wrecked.

Two versions of the cause of the trouble are current. One is that women workers were denied food powder and that the tobacco supply of the men was limited and cigarettes barred. The other version is that the prisoners objected to soap three times a day. Prison authorities have confirmed neither version.

"To Cross the Rubicon." The Rubicon is the ancient name of a stream flowing into the Adriatic which formed the boundary between Cisalpine Gaul and Italy proper. The phrase "to cross the Rubicon" has come to mean to take an irrevocable step, from the familiar story of its passage by Caesar, who, by crossing it in 49 B. C., virtually declared war against the republic. The modern usage, called by the peasants on its banks the Rubicon, has claims to be the ancient Rubicon, but arguments preponderate in favor of the Fiumicino.

Independence of Solitude. It is easy to live in the world after the world's opinion, it is easy in solitude to live after your own, but the great man is he who in the midst of the throng keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

POOREST FRUIT YEAR ON RECORD

As a large proportion of the fruit blossoms between the cotton belt and the Canadian border were killed or injured by the late spring frosts, this seems likely to be the poorest fruit year on the records of the U. S. bureau of crop estimates.

The government estimate of the apple crop, based on conditions in all states on July 1, is 102 million bushels. To find another record of so small an apple crop one has to follow back the column of figures to the year 1899, when the population of the country was only half of what it is now. The peach crop is estimated at less than 31 million bushels or the smallest, by a small margin, since 1907. Of this year's crop, nearly 10 million bushels are in Georgia and other states of the cotton belt and 13 million bushels are on the Pacific coast.

The central states will have little fruit this year, but for people in this state the situation is not nearly as bad as it would seem from these figures, for although the small farm orchards scattered over the states have few apples, the main commercial fruit sections will have fair crops of peaches and pears and about as many apples as they had in 1919. The leading counties have from 25 to 45 per cent of a full crop of apples and the state average is 34, indicating a probable drop of about 17 million bushels. The total crop will equal only a third of last year's huge production, but last year's apples were so plentiful and barrels were so high priced that about a fifth of the apple crop was never harvested and some apples that were stored all winter were dumped out this spring because they could not be sold for what the barrels were worth. This year barrels are worth only half as much and few apples will be wasted.

The peach crop in this state, although far from being a big crop, is not far below the average for recent years. Niagara, the leading county, reports only 38 per cent of a full or normal crop but western New York averages 44, the Hudson valley 70, and the state average is 48. These figures indicate a crop of about 2 million bushels. The pear crop of the state is now estimated at 1.13 million bushels. That is a light crop as the average during the last five years has been 1.45 million bushels.

Grapes were badly frosted in the Chautauque district, especially in vineyards back two or three miles from the protection of the lake. That section, which has about half of the grape vines of the state, now expects only 27 per cent of a normal crop. Growers around the Finger lakes and close to Lake Ontario will average close to 50 per cent of a crop and the Hudson valley section 83. This makes a state average of 40, just half of the average for the last ten years and 23 per cent below the lowest July average previously reported. In Ohio and Pennsylvania, conditions are even worse. This year Jack Frost will take first prize as a prohibition enforcement agent.

Too Autocratic. The Kingston Freeman has been taking strong exceptions editorially to that city ordinance which gives the mayor power to muzzle public speakers when he deems wise. The Freeman thinks the ordinance an invasion of the right of free speech. As a result there has been something of a controversy between Mayor Canfield, an old line party man, and The Freeman, an old-line party organ. That illustrates the very unusual element in the situation.

This commendable thing, however, when party fealty cannot supersede Americanism. We congratulate The Freeman for its searching criticism of the ordinance and its stand for what it believes to be in the interest of the untrammelled liberties to which Americans are heir. Careful as Mayor Canfield might be in the interpretation and application of the ordinance, it seems like placing too much power in one man's hands. The city might change its official head and the official head might change his mind.—Highland Post.

K. OF C. WORLD MEETING SOON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 19.—The largest international convention of the Knights of Columbus will be held in San Francisco beginning August 2 and ending August 5. Thousands of knights and their women folks are already on their way to the coast in special trains from the east and middle west to roll up the total of approximately 25,000 visitors that the K. of C. international meet will bring to the City by the Golden Gate.

Mayor James Rolph, Jr., and his city fathers, have appointed a committee of one hundred prominent San Franciscans of all denominations to greet the knights and arrange for their entertainment while in the city.

Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia will head the army of knights in their march westward and sound the keynote of the convention, known as the "America First" convention, because the Knights of Columbus plan to branch a gigantic American history movement, which will call for the expenditure of more than a million dollars in time and labor for the preparation of a new popular history of the United States from original sources.

Other important works that the knights will initiate at this convention are their national fight on the white plague and the new phase of their educational and hospitalization work for veterans of the war, the latter to cost approximately $5,000,000. Delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada, from Newfoundland, Cuba, Alaska, Porto Rico, Panama, Hawaii, the Philippines and Mexico will represent the 80,000 knights that form the membership of the organization. With them will go scores of alternates.

"The most picturesque activities of the K. of C. have been concerned with Europe for the past three years—ever since America's entry into the war." Supreme Secretary William J. McGinley declares in his prospectus of the convention. "Now our attention is directed solely on our own country and the K. of C. American history movement is the surest way of focusing and keeping focused the eyes of America on what America means."

"This history movement, we believe, will be the solution of the Americanization problem, for we have found an eagerness on the part of would-be citizens for American history and ignorance on the part of many who are citizens regarding American history. It is our aim to supply both with a propaganda-proof story of the country in which we live."

The convention will lay new plans for the conduct of the K. of C. schools, which have already graduated free more than 150,000 former service men in all kinds of technical courses. The convention will be called upon to ratify the K. of C. plan to maintain scholarships in twenty recognized colleges and universities for 500 young veterans of the war.

ENTERTAINED SOLDIERS.

Local "Kaseys" Live Up To Reputation For Hospitality.

Kingston Council, Knights of Columbus extends its thanks to James F. Dwyer, Vincent A. Gorman, John E. Mahar, William O'Reilly and David Schenck for the use of their autos to entertain convalescent soldiers in this vicinity.

On Friday July 8, a committee of "Kaseys" brought eleven soldiers who are summing at Woodstock to this city, took them to a movie show and afterward treated them to a lunch. The boys were delighted with the outing and the thoughtfulness of the Knights.

On July 11 nineteen soldiers who are quartered at the Knauth home on Albany avenue were given a ride around the reservoir under the same auspices and on their return to Kingston were given a crab lunch at Pessenar's restaurant and furnished with cigars and cigarettes. The convalescents were duly grateful and at the regular meeting of the K. of C. Monday evening a letter of appreciation and thanks was read before the meeting showing that the visitors felt that the Knights of Columbus still retained their interest in the "boys" and the slogan "keep coming Kaseys" was still being lived up to.

Poles Get Mild Soviet Note.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. London, July 19.—The Times Warsaw correspondent reports that a conciliatory note has been received by Poland from Tshcherin, the Soviet foreign minister, stating that occasion for mutual recriminations between the two governments will disappear when an exchange of diplomatic representatives takes place.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 19, 1921.

SHEEP OR GOATS.

How many citizens know what assemblages, gatherings or demonstrations they may attend without making criminals of themselves under Mayor Canfield's gag-law? How can they tell if the speaker to whose address or speech they are listening is not himself a criminal under the gag-law? The ordinance is strangely silent on these matters although comprehensive enough in prohibiting the right of free assemblage guaranteed by the constitution and throttling free speech, which is similarly guaranteed.

Mayor Canfield and the common council will have to devise some way for separating the sheep from the goats so that the public will know which is which and who is who. In this worthy work the public will not demand further originality. They need not go further than some of the existing state statutes for ideas.

The state law, for instance, requires certain certificates issued by the state to be displayed within the place of business of the person to whom it was issued. In pre-Volstead days a state license issued to a hotel or saloon was required to be displayed so it could be seen readily from the street, and so far as places "to which the public are invited or have access" is concerned, this plan would seem to be best. The "written permit from the mayor" should be framed and fastened to the church door. If he will make the permits the right size, they will easily fit in the frames which hotel and saloon proprietors formerly used, and thus the place "to which the public are invited or have access" will be saved the expense of buying a new frame.

Another state law requires chauffeurs to display their tag showing they have been licensed, and hunters' licenses also must be worn as they can be seen. As the "written permit from the mayor" to make a speech or address probably will be used in a majority of cases only for the speech for which it is issued, the expense of a metal badge or tag would be considerable, and a cardboard tag, preferably yellow, would be inexpensive but would serve all purposes. Where a season-license is held under a "written permit from the mayor," a metal tag or collar would be cheaper in the end.

MORALS IN HARD TIMES.

When a bigamist was asked recently in court whether he had anything to say before sentence was passed, he answered that he committed the crime because he was "despondent and out of work." This caused some merriment owing to the difficulty of directly tracing bigamy to unemployment as its cause. Yet it is possible that the new wife unlawfully taken was desired not merely because of her charms but because of her pecuniary ability to provide three meals a day. However that may be, the relation between hard times and expanding jail populations is obviously close, as insurance companies are well aware, not only those handling fire insurance but even those offering marine insurance. More of both insurance dues are paid out during periods of business depression than at other times.

For example, the news comes from London that the number of ships which have foundered within easy rowing distance of the British coast and with their crews in little or no danger, have become alarming. With little prospect of good business ahead, and with both ships and cargoes well insured, the temptation to collect insurance on both becomes strong. The strain upon the moral stamina of every community and in every walk of life is more severe in hard times. The encouraging feature of the situation is that the vast majority bear this strain triumphantly, while only weak-kneed or vicious at heart allow themselves to succumb to temptation.

The majority in congress knows as well as the president that the Bonus bill provisions can not be met by the treasury at the present time, and has persisted in playing politics while counting on a presidential veto. The president deserves great credit for his courage in interfering to check the movement without waiting until his duty would require him to veto the bill. He says with obvious truth that the enactment of the bill "in the midst of the struggle for readjustment and restoration" would "greatly imperil the financial ability of our country," and it can not be doubted that intelligent and self-respecting ex-service men will agree with him that "the defenders of the Republic would be the last of our citizenship to wish its stability menaced by an individual pittance."

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Please tell me how to get rid of doves that are building on our house.
2. Can you tell me about the medical herb called Skullcap? When does it come out? How can I recognize it?
3. What is the difference, if any, between a moose and an elk?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

1. Can fishes hear under water? Professional opinion on this point varies. Some students say not. Others think fishes have three ways of getting sound impressions, through the ear, the skin, and certain organs at the side of the body. Experiments were made at Woods Hole, Biological Laboratory of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, to determine the influence of sound on movement of fishes, and apparently some species were attracted by sound, some retreated from it, and some were indifferent.

2. What do pet rabbits eat in winter?

The same general class of food as at any time, fresh vegetables. Lettuce, cabbage, young carrots, celery tops, etc., are obtainable in winter, at least in cities, and in the country some of the winter vegetables that stand cellar storage may be used. Rabbits are cleanly feeders, and while you may offer them parts of a vegetable not served on the table, only clean bits in good condition should be given.

3. Kindly inform me on the estimated flight per hour of the Loon or Great Northern Diver.

Little data is available on rate of flight of most birds. Loons are aquatic, the whole body being shaped for diving. They use the wings under water constantly. Burroughs says in diving the loon "plunges into this denser air and flies with incredible speed." The old criterion of the loon's speed was its ability to dodge a gun shot, but smokeless powder has removed the necessary visual warning when to dive. We cannot give mileage.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A POPULAR "COVER ALL" APRON

Pattern 3361 was employed to make this design. It is cut in 4 sizes: small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. A medium size will require 6 1/2 yards of 27 inch material.

Striped seersucker with facings of white pique would be good for this, or one could have percale, gingham, drill or lawn.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or 1c and 2c stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

THEY SELECTED VERY HARD BED

John Turner And His Friend, Darsey, Found Asleep On A Lumber Pile In Boatyard—Other Cases In Police Court.

"Are you guilty, or not guilty of the charge of loitering?" inquired Judge Schrick pleasantly this morning when John Turner and Darsey, two negroes, were arraigned before him in police court.

"I'm guilty," the pair replied, "I was asleep on a lumber pile in the boatyard."

The judge, who was the taller of the two, was the spokesman for both in answering how it happened. He said that he was working on the Shandaken tunnel and displayed his badge bearing the number under which he is known on the job.

John met Darsey, who was a friend of his, and told Darsey of the joys of the Shandaken job, and Darsey who found that brickyard work did not agree with him, said that he would be glad to accompany John back to Shandaken.

They left the brickyard together Monday afternoon, but as it was hot walking they did not cover much ground and as the shades of night fell both became tired and sleepy, and picking out the most comfortable pile of lumber on the yard—some soft pine—they decided to enjoy a snooze.

It was their snores that led the agents of the law to their abode, and they spent the remainder of the night in the city hall lockup.

Unfortunately for John the judge had rather a good memory for faces and John confessed that he had faced the court on a somewhat similar charge about six weeks ago. At that time he had been given a chance to leave town with a warning to keep out. His neglect to heed the warning cost him a fine of $5 today, and unable to pay it he will be the county's guest for the five days.

His pal, Darsey, was given half an hour to hit the Shandaken trail with the warning to return.

J. L. Gibbons, of No. 81 Green street, arrested Monday evening by Officer Soper on a charge of speeding, pleaded guilty and was fined $5.

Joseph Netburn, arrested by Officer Farnum for driving to the left side of a traffic standard, also pleaded guilty, and was fined $5.

There were no other cases in police court.

WHY

Few Persons Can Tell Truth About Themselves.

The man who can tell the story of his own life in such a way as to give a picture of the age in which he lives is comparatively rare. "Uncle Dudley" writes in the Boston Globe. To begin with, only a strikingly candid and courageous person can tell the truth about himself at all; the impulse to decant only the honey and omit the vinegar is well nigh irresistible. Strongly religious men have given such testimony as an act of faith. The confessions of St. Augustine are one case in point, and those of Tolstoy are another. The autobiography of Benvenuto Cellini is an equally striking example of an utterly irreligious man telling pretty much the whole story about himself—and, incidentally, giving us a vivid glimpse into the ways of life and thinking in the period of the Italian renaissance—largely because Benvenuto did not care a brass farthing what people thought. The diary of Samuel Pepys is an intimate view of a man's inside workings and into the life of his time (London in the Seventeenth century) obtained quite by accident. Pepys kept his diary in a kind of shorthand of his own invention, and, feeling secure behind that screen, committed matters to writing which he might have hesitated to include, had he known his diary would be exhumed, deciphered and published for the amusement, delectation, edification and instruction of later generations.

Rousseau's celebrated "Confessions," which left such an imprint on the minds of European thinkers, were undertaken as a deliberate act of intellectual honesty or propagandist fanaticism, according as you care to look at it.

George Meredith once wrote a novel called "The Egoist," in which he explored the secret recesses of male selfishness and vanity to such uttermost confines that his self-respecting male can read the book without flinching blushes at his own image. Meredith read the manuscript aloud to Robert Louis Stevenson, who was also a candid soul. Asked his opinion, Stevenson remarked:

"Of course, it is very fine. But was it quite fair of you to make such a liberal use of me in your portrait of an egoist?"

"I did not," said Meredith, with a smile. "The egoist is not you. He is—"

And the author tapped his own breast.

Which is a way of saying that the confession of one is, in great measure, the confession of all.

MUST HAVE PERFECT TEETH

Why It Is Important for Young Women to Look Well to That Requisite of Beauty.

No less an authority than Dr. Hollister of the dental division of Pennsylvania state department of health, states that "the young woman of today if she wishes to retain the affections of a man must have a gleaming set of perfect teeth, because no young man cares to sit opposite a young woman whose teeth are crooked and unsightly. Certainly no young man can make the impression she desires if her teeth are a blemish on an otherwise attractive countenance," said Dr. Hollister. "What young man, no matter how much he may like a young woman, will long look at unsightly, ill-kept and crooked teeth without becoming indifferent to their owner? The young woman of today must have a set of gleaming teeth in her mouth and they must be regular and show the attention that their owner gives them. The young woman thus equipped either by nature or man's handiwork is the one best-fitted to retain the affections of a man."

Why Chemical Analysis Is Slow.

Scientific methods have made such rapid strides in recent years that the public, ignorant of the difficulties of research work, has come to expect too much.

If a can of ox-tail soup were sent to a trained chemist for analysis of its chemical constituents, including spices, preservatives, and coloring matter, most business men would expect him to produce a full report within twenty-four hours.

As a matter of fact, it would require a dozen chemists, working continuously upon the problem for a dozen years, in the best equipped laboratory, and they would use up tons of soap.—Popular Science Monthly.

Why Radium Is Expensive.

Practice has shown that it is necessary to handle and treat something like 1,000,000 pounds of ore in order to recover a grain of radium. One ton of ore will seldom deliver more than six or seven milligrams of the radium element, or an amount of radium no larger than the size of a pin head. One authority figures that, including coal, water and chemicals, the producers must handle more than 50,000 tons of raw material to produce an ounce of the precious metal. No such effort has ever before been required to produce a spoonful of any single element.—World's Work.

Why Cook Objected to Music.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "the new cook is going to leave unless you quit playing the phonograph."

"Doesn't she like music?"

"Yes. But she says those jazz records set so rapid a tempo she forgets herself and works three or four times as fast as her wages call for."

Poison Fish in South Seas.

There is a fish which lies buried in the coral sand of the South seas the spines of whose dorsal fin are hollow like the fangs of a rattlesnake. When stepped on it ejects a poison which kills or cripples the victim.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SUN AND RIVER

"Hello, River," said Mr. Sun.

"Hello, Sun," said the River.

"You don't have to go to bed, do you?" asked Mr. Sun.

"No, I do. But then it is all right, as I like to go to bed, I enjoy it and you can see that I'm not weeping tears about it, for I look so gay and so bright and so happy. I've had a birthday party this afternoon, and so I'm wearing my beautiful rose suit."

"In swimming," said Mr. Sun.

"No, I don't have to go to bed," said the River.

"But I take many a rest. You've seen me looking very quiet and peaceful? That is when I am taking a rest."

"In the winter I often rest, too, when the Ice King puts one of his best blankets over me and tells me he will attend to matters while I have a rest."

"But I don't go to sleep as you do, at just such a time, every day, or every afternoon."

"I'd like to have a talk with you," said Mr. Sun.

"And I'd like to have a talk with you," said the River.

"Just wait a moment," said Mr. Sun.

"And I'll wear all my very best finery."

"Dear me, I'm honored," said the River.

Then in a few moments Mr. Sun was ready for his talk with the River.

He wore a gorgeous suit of deep rose color and a collar of deep rose and blue and lavender and pink clouds. He wore a hat of deep sky blue with rose colored braid.

"Dear me, Mr. Sun, you are wonderful!" said the River.

"I am glad you think so," said Mr. Sun.

"I don't know when I've dressed up so much. I most certainly am very dressy."

"And now, River, what is the news?"

"Well," said the River, smiling a little rippling smile, "I have had a great many boats going through me today. And some boys and girls have gone in swimming along near my banks."

"Some of the trees on the high hills above have changed into their summer green suits from the pale green spring ones they were wearing."

"The tug boats have made the usual amount of noise. What noisy little boats they are. One would think they were great big boats from the noise they make."

"But of course I know better. They can't fool the River! They're like creatures who don't amount to much who're always shouting and trying to make people think they do amount to something, because they praise themselves so much."

"Still, I'm fond of the tug boats, and they must make a noise, I suppose, so the big boats won't run them down."

"There have been some lovely sail boats about today. How beautiful they are! The River loves them so."

"And there have been big passenger boats, for you know I'm a big, grown-up River, and I have lots of work to do."

"I know that," said the Sun.

So the River and the Sun talked and the Sun looked right down at the River as he talked.

And the River looked up at the face of the Sun dressed in his very, very best, and smiled so gloriously.

People who were passing by the river exclaimed as they saw what they called Mr. Sun's going-to-bed time—a sunset.

No one who saw this sunset had ever seen a more beautiful one. For one portion of the sky was rose scarlet in color and the portion of the river below was of the same color, for the river was very still and reflected the brightness of the sky just as a mirror will reflect—or show one's face if one looks into it.

Never, never had people seen such a beautiful sunset. The colors seemed so wonderful that the people could hardly believe they were seeing something real. They just stood and watched until the Sun went to bed some time later, and the shadows came and the River grew dark once more.

But while the Sun was going to bed and while he gave of his glory to the beautiful River, people were rejoicing that they lived in a world where there was so much beauty.

And when Mr. Sun had finished his talk with the River he said:

"Ah, lovely River, without you I could not have looked so fine!"

Principle and impulse.

Impulsiveness would be a greater blessing if only we would use our impulses instead of letting them use us.

Let good impulses have their rightful play, but let principle stand squarely behind them.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS.

When you have time to prepare a little extra dish the following will be well worth your trouble:

Hamburg Steak With Cabbage.—Wash and wipe dry the firm, crisp outside leaves from a head of cabbage. Prepare the steak by mixing with salt, pepper, a bit of clove and nutmeg as well as a little onion juice. Have the steak one-third sautéed, make into small balls and brown in the frying pan until nicely browned, but not cooked through. Now strap each ball in the cabbage leaf, skewer with tooth picks and place in a frying pan with a little boiling water. Cover closely and cook for half an hour or until the cabbage is tender. Serve with the gravy poured over the cakes. Tomato sauce is very good with this dish.

Quick Dessert.—A dessert which is quickly prepared, provided you have the ingredients, is this: Arrange squares of sponge cake on dessert plates, heap with sweetened and flavored whipped cream and on top of the cream place a canned apricot, round side up. It will look like a poached egg and taste better.

Raspberry Sponge.—Fill an earthen bowl with layers of toasted bread and fresh raspberries, sprinkled with sugar. When the bowl is full, cover and put under a weight, be stand for two hours. Remove the weight and serve with a large spoon. Serve in cups, and over each pour sweetened cream to which some of the berry juice has been added.

Lemon Jelly With Peaches.—Make a mold of lemon jelly, unmold it on a platter and heap round it halves of sweetened peaches. Around the peaches heap sweetened whipped cream, and serve well chilled. Other fruit, either fresh or canned, may be served in this manner.

Tuna fish is a most delicious fish, more like chicken or turkey; it may be served as a salad or in a loaf as sandwich filling, or in many ways which will occur to the possessor of a few cans of the delicacy.

GOLF CHAMPIONS GET UNDER WAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, July 19.—America's greatest golf championship began on the links of the Columbia Country Club here today, when one half of the field of 240 experts went away in the testing 18 holes qualifying round.

The other players will play tomorrow. Professionals regard this as the most exacting qualifying round ever held in a championship as no player can afford to go badly on more than two holes and hope to be among the 72 players and all tied for 72nd place, who will qualify for the championship proper.

Jack Hutchinson, winner of the British open title; Abe Mitchell, the long hitting English professional and Joe Kirkwood, the Australian open champion, are the favorites, but with such a fast field, many considered the affair a lottery, with any one of twenty players a possible winner.

The low scores in practice made it certain that nothing worse than a 78 would qualify. Wagers were made at even money that this figure would be required and that 68 would be bettered before the championship ends.

Walter Hagen, Kirkwood and Mitchell were the three most prominent players to participate in today's qualifying round.

Weather conditions were good when the first pair got away. Joe Kirkwood, the Australian open champion, was the first real starter and a gallery of three hundred trailed behind.

Jack Hutchinson and Abe Mitchell were paired and were followed by 60.

The professional golfers' association has voted a formal protest against an 18 hole qualifying round and requested that in the future it be extended to 36 holes.

IMITATED TRADE-MARK.

Court Holds Albany Shoe Dealer Deceives Customers.

Supreme Court Justice Harold J. Hinman of Albany has handed down an interesting decision involving the use of an imitated trade-mark; whose use he has prohibited by a permanent injunction. A Pennsylvania firm operating a chain of seventy-two stores made a specialty of "Hand-over-Shoes." Decreased production during the war compelled them to close their Albany store, which was opened by an Albany dealer under the name of "Hand-Over Shoes." The former proprietors alleged the public was misled in believing that they were buying "Hand-over" shoes. Judge Hinman holds that the name adopted by the second dealer was a colorable evasion of the rights of the former proprietors and calculated to deceive the public and induce purchasers to patronize his store and receive the benefit of the good will of the former business.

Apples in the Garden of Eden

By FREDERICK HART

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The dusty stranger paused in his stroll along the highway and looked interestedly over the fence into the apple orchard. The laden trees glowed with their burden of red and golden fruit in the afternoon sunlight. Here and there in the trees the forms of men, basket-laden, showed amid the branches. But the dusty stranger was not watching the men. What had caught his eye was a slim figure clad in overalls and a great straw hat that flitted about the orchard, directing, urging, overseeing the work, and now and then taking a hand at the picking.

The baggy garments made the gender of this figure indeterminate; but the clear voice with which she exhorted the pickers left no doubt that it was a girl, and thought the dusty stranger, if the voice was any criterion, a remarkably pretty girl, too. He continued to watch, hoping that she would turn his way.

Presently she did, and he was conscious of a pretty, piquant face, somewhat tanned, with a saucy nose and dark, shining eyes—the whole making an ensemble that the informal costume only set off to better advantage.

He regarded her from his distance with a frank look of admiration, but he was greatly surprised when she made a gesture in his direction and called to him.

"Here!" The voice was imperious.

"Do you want work?"

"Yes," replied the dusty stranger, though one minute ago work had been farthest from his thoughts.

"Then come on and get a basket and help pick," she said. "A dollar a day and your board."

The dusty stranger climbed the fence with alacrity, looked about till he found a basket and, slinging it on his shoulders, proceeded to climb the nearest tree, where he was immediately busily occupied in filling his basket with the luscious fruit that hung all around him. Below, the girl heaved a sigh of relief as she watched his efforts.

"That's just about all the men we'll need to get the crop in time for the market," she thought. "What a blessing that that tramp came along just then! I hope he stays!"

She might have set her mind at rest on the last point, though she might well have been disturbed on other grounds had she known what the dusty stranger was thinking as he filled his basket.

"She's the prettiest thing I've seen in years," he was ruminating. "And the way she bosses this job is a miracle! Will I stay? Well, I should rather think so! A dollar a day and board! That's good! Wait till I tell the boys that!" And he chuckled to himself as he swung down to empty his basket and ascend again.

As evening fell the apple-pickers came down from their trees, emptied their baskets on the piles of fruit that lay about the orchard, and returned to the farmhouse. There, after a supper such as the dusty stranger had not eaten in years, they turned in for the night. Most of the pickers, their day's work done, fell at once into the deep sleep of thoroughly wearied men; but the dusty stranger lay awake for awhile and watched the moon, which he could see from his window, slowly climb the sky. Finally he, too, fell asleep, with the face of the ruler of the orchard before his mind's eye and her voice in his ear.

In the morning they were at it again, and all that hot day they toiled. The work was hardly begun, for the orchard was a large one. A week of hard work, however, and the end was in sight. The dusty stranger, sitting in the fork of a gnarled old tree of sheepskin, meditated regretfully on this fact, which would necessitate his leaving or getting other work on the place.

"I went into this thing for a lark," he thought. "And I'll be hanged if I haven't gone and fallen in love with her. And she thinks I'm a tramp! There's nothing to do but make her employ me around here some more."

But Fate, who keeps a watchful eye over her favored ones, interfered at this point. As the stranger leaned far out along a branch to pick an especially fine pippin that hung just out of his reach, his watch slipped from the little pocket where he kept it and fell to the ground below. Particularly it landed on a thick tuft of grass, and so saved itself from destruction; but the silence of its fall made its owner suspicious of its loss.

He picked up, unaware that his problem was within seconds of its solution.

To his tree came the girl, intent on giving a word of commendation to this boy who worked so industriously. The glitter of gold on the ground caused her to stoop and pick up the watch. Its back had shown open from the shock of the fall, and as she was about to call to the man to the tree her eye was caught by an inscription engraved on the inside of the case.

she read. For a moment the hardly believed her eyes; then she took a long look at the case in the twinkling, and snapping the watch into her pocket

she returned to the house, thinking hard, William George Fahnestock!

She had read the words and dreamed of the man who would look with so with such a warm word. And this be so. College professors who write books didn't pick apples during the summer. . . . That evening as the moon came in she said severely to the stranger, "Come into the living room after supper, I want to speak to you."

When the stranger found himself in the quietly lighted living room with the girl, he saw her for the first time clad in the garments of civilization, and her beauty struck him with new force. He said nothing but waited for her to speak.

"Mr.—I don't know what your name is," she began. "I found this on the ground this morning." And she held out the watch to him. The back was still open.

He looked at her guiltily. "I suppose you read the inscription," he said.

"Yes, I read it; and I must say, that I am surprised."

"Well—" he hung his head. "I suppose there's nothing for it but confession. Now that you know, I might as well own up. . . . I am William George Fahnestock."

For a moment she was silent, but her heart was beating queerly.

"If you are the famous Mr. Fahnestock," she said, "why were you wearing such awful clothes, and why did you take a job picking apples?"

"I wore the awful clothes," he replied, "because on a hiking trip through the country one does not like to wear things that may be damaged by rain and dust. And I took the job because—because—well, I don't believe I'll tell you—just yet. But haven't you some more work for me after the apples are all picked?"

"I—I think I might be able to find something for you to do," she replied.

The pupils of Prof. Fahnestock, professor of English literature at the State University, found added pleasure when college opened that autumn in the fact that their favorite instructor, or was about to be married. They attended the wedding in a body, and the silver service they presented the happy couple was a marvel to behold. But the groom's gift to the bride caused considerable wonder. It was a bar-pin set with diamonds, and in the center was the representation, done in rubies and emeralds, of a tiny but very life-like apple.

WOULD HAVE NO QUIBBLING

Vermont Judge Had Right Idea of the Proper Function of a Court of Law.

In Vermont they tell a story of an elderly judge who cared little for legal quibbling. "If justice controls your verdict," was his favorite charge to a jury, "you will not miss the general principles of the law."

At one trial, when the possession of a farm was in question, the defendant offered a deed of the premises, to which the plaintiff's lawyer objected because it had no seal.

"But your client said the land was paid for it and signed the deed, did he not?" asked the judge.

"That makes no difference, your honor," said the lawyer, respectfully. "The deed has no seal and cannot be admitted in evidence."

"Is there anything else wrong with the deed?" asked the judge.

"I don't know that there is," "Mr. Clerk," said the judge, "give me a wafer and a three-cornered piece of paper."

The clerk obeyed; whereupon the judge with great deliberation made and affixed the seal.

"There, sir," said he to the lawyer. "The deed is all right now. It may be placed in evidence. A man is not going to be cheated out of his farm in this court when there is a whole box of wafers on the clerk's desk."

Mohammedans at Prayer.

What is probably the strangest prayer meeting in the world is that held twice a year on the plain outside the city of Biskra, in Algeria. It is attended by hundreds of devout Mohammedans, and it is a wonderful sight to see these white-robed figures bowing and chanting in unison and occasionally prostrating themselves on the ground. Before the prostration they remove their shoes and touch the ground with their foreheads, bowing in the direction of Mecca, their holy city.

After the set liturgical prayers have been finished, the worshippers gather in a circle round an old Imam (or leader), who preaches to them. The sermon is not long, in deference to one of the Prophet's pious sayings: "The length of a man's prayers and the shortness of his sermons are signs of his common sense."

The Druggist Explains.

"I can't fill this prescription," "Why not?"

"It says 'spiritus frumenti, quantum sufficit.'"

"Spiritus frumenti is whiskey, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"And what does quantum sufficit mean?"

"All you want. That's why I can't fill it."—Leicester Courier-Journal.

FROCK THAT IS STRIKING

The long, graceful lines of this frock are accentuated by its alternate stripes of sand and navy tints, the stripes of navy embroidered with a graceful design in sand-colored wool.

COOL CURTAINS FOR SUMMER

Silk or Cotton Pongee, English Case-moment Cloth, Chambray, Gingham Suitable for Purpose.

For summer use, the more simple the curtains the more suitable and attractive they are. As a rule, since light and air are the paramount considerations at this season, only one set of curtains should be used. Rooms which are flooded with sunshine for several hours a day require curtains heavy enough to temper the glare while admitting sufficient light. Silk or cotton pongee, English case-moment cloth, chambray, gingham, crinkled Austrian cloth and the various lightweight sunfasts admirably fulfill this purpose.

In rooms with a cold exposure, and especially in those whose windows are inadequate in size or are shaded by trees or porches, the opposite method should be followed, and the curtains made of the most transparent fabrics which can be obtained.

Plain or figured muslinettes and dotted muslins and gossamers make charming curtains, and the most fast-cleaning materials for this purpose may be found on the dress goods counters. These include all sorts of dimities, organdies, striped and figured voiles, calicoes, and the colored swisses so much in vogue for summer frocks. Should they fade after a time, those in plain colors can easily have their beauty restored by the use of one of the modern dyes which do not require boiling.

The new sets, both plain and figured, are obtainable in great variety. Where there are no overdraperies, the figured sets are usually preferable in order that the windows may not appear bare, and suitable patterns can be obtained for rooms of every type and period.—Good Housekeeping.

WAY OF MAKING HAND TUCKS

Crease and Run Through the Tuckers on Machine Without Using Thread.

An easy way of making hand tucks in lingerie is to crease the first tuck as usual for machine tucking and adjust the tucker, but do not thread the machine; then run it through the tucker. The needle will leave a distinct line along which to run your hand sewing. The marker also leaves a line for the next tuck. It is best to sew each tuck as it comes from the tucker, since hand tucking is absolutely accurate, with the dashings of hand sewing, and can be done in less than half the usual time.

How About Shirts?

The specialist has declared that we are to wear the straight long-sleeved frock with a short clinging apron-like garment with either in the form of a circular bow or, more happily, in the form of overlapping panels of various lengths. The skirt to wear as a rule—about eight inches from the floor, with loose panels falling over to the heels. Many skirts, owing to this arrangement of clinging panels, are bought in effort to the back than in the front. Tailored skirts are often straight and correct in effect, with overlapping panels or pleats leading away from the center.

Forget.

There is an excellent opportunity for forgetting things in the new glasses, which are some of them short but sport a trail of color and which grow from a very effect.

Have a Definite Purpose.

The world will stand aside for the man who knows where he is going but will pay little attention to the man who is too little worrying. It is not the fact of the world but of the man if he finds his path obscured.

Somewhat Embarrassing.

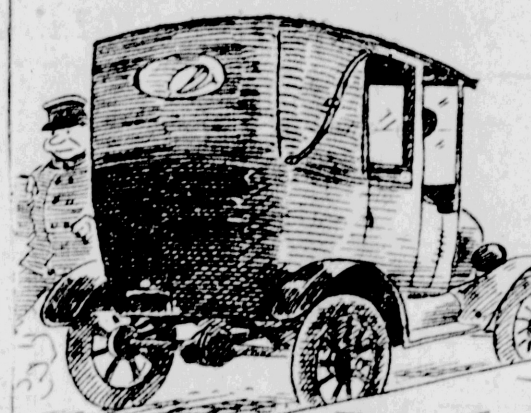

"The Child Study Club" was meeting at my home. I was on the program for a paper on "Discipline." I had just finished reading the same and a round table discussion was about to follow when my youngest daughter, age 6, came into the house crying, her clothes muddy and torn. I hurriedly asked her what was the matter, and her older sister said in tones audible to the whole club, "She's been down in the mud fighting with that bad V—boy."—Chicago American.

THAT'S OUR IDEA in making CAMELS—the Quality Cigarette.

Why, just buy Camels and look at the package! It's the best packing science has devised to keep cigarettes fresh and full flavored for your taste. Heavy paper outside—secure foil wrapping inside and the revenue stamp over the end to seal the package and keep it air-tight.

And note this! There's nothing flashy about the Camel package. No extra wrappings that do not improve the smoke. Not a cent of needless expense that must come out of the quality of the tobacco.

Camels wonderful and exclusive Quality wins on merit alone.

Because, men smoke Camels who want the taste and fragrance of the finest tobaccos, expertly blended. Men smoke Camels for Camels smooth, refreshing mildness and their freedom from cigarettey aftertaste.

ASPHALT FIRE COST $1,000,000

Residents Near Linden and Across on Staten Island Spent Night of Terror From Exploding Stills and Tanks and Floating Flames.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, July 19.—Fire, which swept in flaming billows of oil across New Jersey pasture land and over Staten Island Sound, caused more than $1,000,000 damage and threatened the homes and property of thousands before it was finally under control early today. Starting with the explosion of a still in the Warner-Quinlan asphalt plant at Linden, N. J., the flames, fed by oil from neighboring tanks, spread and raged throughout the night.

Burning oil and asphalt poured into Staten Island Sound in a tidal wave four feet high, and swept down upon millions of dollars' worth of shipping, piers and plants along the shore. Part of the fiery wave broke itself upon Prall's Island, while firemen from a score of towns fought with huge booms to dam the flaming flood. Fifty shipping board vessels at Arlington were in peril.

Navigation for a mile around the danger points was stopped. Fire tugs of the Standard Oil Company were used to fight the flaming oil waves during the night. Every available man along the flame-licked shores was called into service.

Scores of persons in the fire-swept area are ill today from the effect of acrid fumes inhaled during the conflagration. After sweeping across meadow land from the asphalt plant at Linden, the flames destroyed twelve stills in the vicinity and more than a dozen tanks. One of the last tanks exploded early today, shooting pillars of fire hundreds of feet into the air and hurling a great mass of blazing oil into the sound.

Rushing against wind and tide, the burning oil reached a point within fifty feet of Staten Island shore before it receded. Many inhabitants of the island fled, and all others kept an all night vigil.

The $1,000,000 loss includes the destruction of the Warner-Quinlan plant, with thirty-four tanks and 300,000 barrels of crude and refined oil. Twenty of the tanks destroyed contained asphalt, which, burning, gave off almost poisonous fumes.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, July 19.—There will be a meeting tonight in the Methodist Church for the purpose of organizing the Allied Citizens, a body of citizens united for law enforcement. Its present efforts will be largely devoted to the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment although it has a broader program relating to civic affairs.

The Methodist Sunday school will hold its annual picnic on Friday, July 29, at Butternut Grove.

Mrs. William Shannon spent Saturday in Kingston.

The fifth anniversary of the Ellenville Musical Club occurs July 20, when a program suitable to the occasion and season will be given in Memorial Hall at 8:30 o'clock, program to begin at 8:45. Organized in 1916, federated in 1917, the Ellenville Musical Club has become firmly established and proven its right to be as an influence and inspiration in aesthetic development of this community, particularly for the young. Its importance cannot be overestimated. A part of the work the past two seasons has been the choral under the efficient direction of Harry P. Dodge of Kingston.

On Tuesday last at the Hunt Memorial building many friends of the Rev. Thomas B. Dougherty assembled in farewell testimonial to him. Father Dougherty for nine years past has been chaplain at the Napanoch Reformatory and pastor and associate of the Rev. Joseph L. McCann, the present pastor in the conduct of St. Mary's Church, Ellenville. During his residence in this village Father Dougherty won the wide-spread and sincere affections and friendship not only of his own parishioners but of all with whom he came in contact. The assembly at the Memorial building was the result of the spontaneous purpose of his friends within and without his former congregation to express formally their esteem for him and to present him with a substantial token of their gratitude and affection. This token was a gift of $500 in money and was aptly described by Judge Cunningham in his presentation of it as "Not a gift at all," but a partial restitution of what his people had received from him in such fullness and generosity during the nine years of his pastorate.

Fred Kramel and family of New York, motored to Ellenville on a week's visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kramel, on Upper Center street.

Frank Ter Bush of New York spent the week end with his wife and family at the Ter Bush home one Maple avenue.

James Myers of Maple avenue is improving his house by painting it. The Rev. George Montrose of Central Valley and Otis Montrose of Cold Springs, are visiting their brother, E. D. Montrose, on Warren street.

R. G. Simpson, who sold his residence here last fall and went to De Land, Florida, to his winter home has bought a home for the summers in Middletown, N. Y.

Mrs. Belle Parker of Tuckahoe, N. Y., is spending some time with her aunt, Mrs. Jake Rippert, on South Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Lauber, the bride and groom, are spending a few days at Mr. Lauber's parents', Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Lauber, North Main street.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smart of Allentown, Pa., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Ella DeGroot, Elting Court.

Mrs. Chester Bradford and daughter are visiting her parents in Kingston.

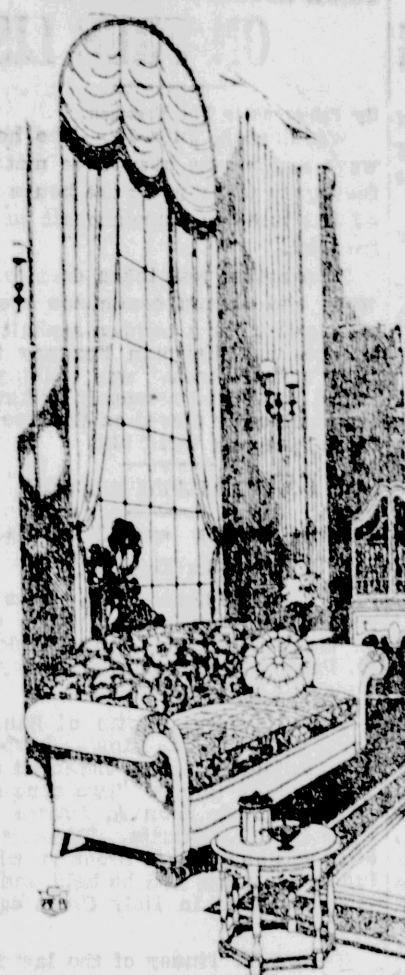

The baby clinic Tuesday at the high school was a big success, over 50 babies being presented for examination.

Kenneth Bradford is on his new job as parcel post boy.

Master Carl Vandendael of Pompton Lakes is visiting his uncle, Ulster Palmer.

Otto Johnson, Jr., of New York, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Johnson, on Bloomer street.

Hupmobile

There are four real questions when you buy a car—What will it cost to run?

Will repairs be heavy? How long will it last? What will it bring when sold?

If you get the same answers as the man who buys the Hupmobile, you can be sure you have not paid too much.

Hupmobile running economy is known to be truly exceptional.

Owners will tell you their repair bills are unusually light.

It is a fact that many Hupmobiles serve three or four long-time owners before they wear out.

COOPERATION FARM SALVATION

Organization Selling Alone Will Save
New York Farmers, Shapiro Tells
Farm Bureau Federation.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, July 19.—"Farmers' failures have been the farmers' fault."

Joseph Shapiro, the brilliant young Californian economist, sent 100 county agents of the Farm Bureau Federation of New York back to their constituents on the farms today with this message ringing in their ears. The solution, Shapiro said, lies in co-operative distribution and merchandising.

"Don't blame the middleman, the retailer, or the profiteer," Shapiro said, speaking at a dinner given by the agents by the North American Fruit Exchange at the Hotel Commodore. "The fault is yours. Organize your selling. Advertise. Tell the public 'Apples are coming.' Potatoes are coming. Buy now and buy in quantities and you can buy cheap."

The farmer's problem, according to Shapiro, is to so organize distribution that the retailer can sell with an eye to volume, not margin. When this is done, the farmer will get a fair price for his produce, and the consumer will get the produce at a fair price.

Every other industry in the world distributes on a co-operative basis, Shapiro said. Farming alone, the greatest of all industries, has been distributing on an individual basis. Farm produce has been dumped on the market in competition with itself, so that sometimes only 25 per cent reaches the consumer. The result is a shortage of food, high prices paid by the consumer, and loss to the farmer.

Shapiro declared emphatically that co-operative distribution and that alone was going to save the farmer of the United States from failure.

bia, who have control of Uncle Sam's purse strings in the district. "Jimmy" went before the committee and asked that the members make the necessary appropriation to continue nature studies in the schools. It is believed that he is the youngest person that ever addressed members of congress.

TAKE CHARGE AT ALSEN PLANT

The Catskill Mail says: The Rosoff Engineering Co., of New York, the purchaser of the Alsen Cement Works and the Marlborough Sand and Gravel Corporation, under the receiver's sale conducted by Receiver Edwards H. Child at Catskill on April 19 last, and at Kingston on April 22, took possession at Alsen on Saturday, the court order for the transfer having been issued Friday last.

The works have been practically shut down pending the transfer of the property to the Rosoff Engineering Co. under the terms of the receiver's sale. It will be remembered that the Rosoff Engineering Corporation at the supplementary sale at Kingston on April 22, which included both the Alsen Cement Co. and the Marlborough Sand and Gravel Corporation, as separate properties, raised its previous bid on the Marlborough property, bringing its total bid for the property of the Alsen Cement Company to $591,000, including the two plants.

The plans of the Rosoff Engineering Co. cannot be declared until the company is ready to make an announcement. The Rosoff Engineering Co. have been large contractors in highway construction and recently took a contract for building the highway between Margaretville and Ades at a bid exceeding $500,000. Mr. Rosoff is expected at Alsen to-day. He informed a Daily Mail representative at the time of his purchase of the two properties that on taking possession at Alsen he would at once put the plant in a condition for operation and engage a force of men. Superintendent Grainer was, at that time, given instructions to keep the plant in good condition.

GIRLS SHOULD TAKE WARNING

And Not Accept Auto Rides of Strange Young Men—Thrilling Experience of Some Poughkeepsie Girls—One Man Arrested.

The Poughkeepsie Evening Star says:

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wood of Cram Elbow were driving homeward from Poughkeepsie over the lonely road near the Elbow school house, Dorsey's lane, when they were appealed to by three stranded young women, who were huddled together by the roadside and crying bitterly, to take them home.

They tearfully explained that they had accepted an invitation from a strange young man to take an automobile ride late Saturday night and that they had foolishly accepted.

"We were having ice cream sodas in a Main street candy store," they said, "when the young man asked us to join him in a cool ride. We got into the car, but only to find two other young men already there. We could not get out, as the driver kept going fast and assuring us we were all right. Then they brought us to this lonely place, and when we resisted they threatened to harm us. We have been here over an hour, afraid to ask for a ride home."

A telephone message was sent from a Dorsey Lane residence to Chauncey J. Elghmie, the livyerman on Main street, by Mr. Wood. Mr. Elghmie got up and dressed, took his car to the spot and brought the girls home to Cannon street.

They were unable to give the license number of the car.

Two other girls, watching the fireworks at Cataract Square, had an exciting experience during the same night.

A well dressed young man stood by a car at the curb, and a flirtation ensued. The well dressed young man had a male companion in the car and the two girls were induced to go riding.

At 11 a. m. Sunday, a telephone call was received by Underhill Briggs from Manchester Bridge, saying that a quarrel was in progress between two men and two girls and that one of the girls was screaming for help.

Mr. Briggs hurried out in his car and brought the girl back—the one who said she had fought and scratched her male companion. The car had, however, disappeared by the time the undersheriff arrived, and so had her girl friend and the other man in the case.

At the police station the case was taken up by Lieutenant Kimlin, to whom the girl related her experience.

With the lieutenant she made the rounds of one or two garages and then, the police say, she identified the big car in which she had been a passenger. It was found in the Nelson House garage.

Albert P. Lentner of New York, who says he is employed in a bank, was routed out of bed from room 24 and confronted by the girl, who said he was the man, according to the authorities.

Justice John F. Hoppe held court at 11 a. m. in police station at the request of all parties, and Lentner was given a hearing. He denied the charge of attempted assault, and was held in default of $2,500 bail.

The case is being thoroughly investigated today.

Mr. Briggs has a third case under inquiry in which an attack was attempted upon a young girl after an auto ride. A still further case where two girls, it is alleged, were abandoned in Highland by a Poughkeepsie car driver and a male companion is under investigation.

Grass Fire in Second Ward.

About 9:30 o'clock Monday night the fire department was called to extinguish a grass fire which was blazing fiercely in the vacant lot between the "Incubator Building" and the lace curtain mills on O'Neil street. The fire seemed to have started in several places at once, leading many to believe that some one started it, perhaps the same ones that have started three fires in or near buildings in that neighborhood lately.

It was announced Donovan would corroborate the testimony of Bill Burns, the state's "star" witness.

STRIKING PAPER MEN ROUSED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, New Hampshire, July 19.—Apprehension was evidenced here today over what the consequences will be of the arrival of attorneys for the International Paper Company, who, it is said, are prepared to commence criminal and civil action against strikers for damage to the company's mills.

The situation already tense, was further inflamed by the announcement that a large number of strike breakers are on hand and that armed guards are on duty at North Walpole. The citizens of North Walpole had refused to furnish special deputies for the protection of the paper company's property there.

Berlin clergymen are said to have been threatened with dynamite if they discuss the situation from the pulpit.

MRS. BERGDOLL MAKES CHARGES

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, July 19.—Charges that men "higher up" in Washington sought to wring $100,000 from Mrs. Emma Bergdoll, mother of Grover Bergdoll, Philadelphia slacker now in Germany, were brought out today before the house committee investigating the Bergdoll escape.

Mrs. Bergdoll told General John Sherbourne, committee counsel, two weeks ago, it was developed, that she had been approached by a "Captain Campbell" at Governors Island, prior to Bergdoll's trial there, who asked for $100,000. She told Sherbourne that the officer explained he did not want the money for himself but "for higher ups" at Washington.

Questioned by the committee Mrs. Bergdoll said she had meant Captain Bruce Campbell, who defended Grover, when she told her story to Sherbourne.

MOVE FOR REAL GERMAN PEACE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, July 19.—The administration has opened negotiations for the resumption of diplomatic relations with Germany, it was announced at the White House this afternoon.

The direction of the administration, Ellis Loring Dresel, American commissioner in Berlin, has been carrying on informal discussions with the German foreign office looking towards formal negotiations for the resumption of peace time relations with the German nation, it was announced.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, July 19.—The foreign oil stocks were the features at the opening of the stock exchange this morning, being strong on the defeat of the import tax on petroleum by the house at Washington. Mexican Petroleum jumped four points to 105. Pan-American Petroleum was up 2½ to 50½. General Asphalt rose 1½ to 50½. The remainder of the list generally was firmer. Rock Island was up 1½ to 31½. Atlantic Gulf was up 1½ to 21. St. Paul preferred rose ¾ to 39½.

After irregular movements in the list during the first fifteen minutes, the railroad stocks became active and strong. Many of the leading railroads made advances of over one point. Northern Pacific was one of the active features, moving up 1½ to 73½ and St. Paul preferred rose 1¼ to 40. U. S. Steel was traded in from 73½ to 73½ and Baldwin moved up from 74½ to 75½. The central leather issues were active and strong, the common and preferred both moving up one point. Mexican Petroleum after rallying to 105 yielded to 103½.

The market closed steady; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

The afternoon trading may be comprehended to some extent by the fact that the sales between 1 and 2 p. m. amounted to only 33,000 shares and of this small volume fully 90 per cent was of a professional character.

NEGRO HELD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Baltimore, Md., July 19.—Identified, it is said, by Detective Sergeant Harry B. Cockran, of Pittsburgh, as the man who last January assaulted and murdered a Mrs. Kicker, at her home in Cutter Milk Hollow, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh and later assaulted two other white women, Joseph Thomas, alias Albert Williams, a negro, is held here today pending the arrival of extradition papers from Pennsylvania. A reward of $5,500 had been offered for the capture of the negro and this money will be divided among Baltimore policemen who made the arrest.

Thomas was arrested after it is alleged he had robbed a residence in the fashionable Forest Park section of the city. Thomas, it is said, escaped from a hospital in Pittsburgh on February 7 last.

INVENTORS BUSY.

Patent Office Business Increases By Leaps and Bounds.

Washington, July 19.—The American inventive mind was busy during the first six months of this year, no less than 45,000 applications for patents having been filed during that period, an increase of 42 1/2 per cent over the number for the first half of 1918, the patent office announced today. At the same time 8,369 applications for trade marks were filed.

In spite of the industrial depression the amount of business presented to every branch of the patent office has increased by leaps and bounds since 1918, the demands upon the office being beyond any previous figures in its history, with no recession in sight, officials said.

Hearing on Blue Law Question.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 19.—The anti-blue law advocates are going to have a hearing before the house judiciary committee in opposition to a national Sunday observance law, which was recently urged by representatives of the Southern Methodist Church. It was announced today. The anti-blue hearing will be held the last week in July and efforts will also be made to secure a hearing before the senate judiciary committee and possibly the interstate commerce committee.

Ukrainian Peasants Suppressed.

London, July 19.—The revolt of the peasants in Ukraina has been crushed, according to a Central News despatch from Moscow today. A Riga despatch quotes M. Zinoviev, one of the leading communist chiefs in Russia as telling the Third International that the Russian Communists must prepare for attacks from all sides.

REVENUE FOR ROAD BUILDING

Registration and License Fees in 1920 Amounted to $102,034,106— Increase in Cars.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A total of 9,211,255 motorcycles, including commercial vehicles, were registered last year in the 48 states and District of Columbia, according to figures compiled by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture in a study of revenue available for road-building purposes. There were also registered a total of 238,146 motorcycles. The registration and license fees, including those for chauffeurs, operators and dealers, amounted to $102,034,106.25. As compared with 1919, the data for 1920 represent an increase of 22 per cent, or 1,645,649 motorcycles. This increase alone lacks but 4 per cent of being equal to the total registrations of the United States six years ago.

In 1920 in the state of New York alone the number of motorcycles registered, including commercial vehicles, exceeded the total cars registered in the whole of the United States in 1910. Furthermore, the revenues derived from registration in the state of New York in 1920 were about equal to the entire registration revenues of the United States for 1913.

The use made of revenues has changed with the passing of years. In 1906 the total registrations were approximately 48,000 cars paying a gross revenue of about $195,000. (Arizona in 1920 paid approximately this amount.) In 1906 the gross registration revenues were equal to less than three-tenths of 1 per cent of the total rural road and bridge expenditures for that year.

The registration revenues in 1920 were equal to about 25 per cent of the total rural road and bridge expenditures for the calendar year 1919. In 1906 practically none of the motor-vehicle revenues was applied to road maintenance or construction, while in 1920 56 per cent, or a total of $17,967,160.00, was used for this purpose. The remaining 4 per cent not applied to road work was expended very largely for number plates and in carrying out the provisions of the motor vehicle registration laws in the several states. Of the total amount applied to road work 79 per cent, or $77,531,582.57, was expended under the control or supervision of the several state highway departments.

FARMER AND GOOD HIGHWAYS

Improved Roads Make Farm Only a Suburb and Land Has Increased Greatly in Value.

The biggest booster for good roads in the country today is the farmer. A few years ago he felt that the portion of his taxes used in the construction of permanent highways represented a benefit only to the motoring tourist and the city automobile owner. The farmer argued that he was paying for their pleasures, and the result was a superstition against the good roads movement, which, unfortunately, has not as yet been entirely overcome in some sections of the country.

Now, however, when the farmer finds that John Turner and His Friend, Darney, Picked Asleep On A Lumber Pile In Shandaken—Other Cases In Police Court.

"Are you guilty, or not guilty of the charge of loitering?" inquired Judge Schirick pleasantly this morning when John Turner and Darney, two negroes, were arraigned before him in police court.

"I'm guilty," I've fell asleep," confessed both. The pair had been found asleep on a lumber pile in the Shandaken & Poncey boatyard on the shore in Ponceykockie, during the night by Officers Barger and Urban.

John who was the taller of the two was the spokesman for both in answering how it happened. He said that he was working on the Shandaken tunnel and displayed his "shandaken" bearing. The number under which he is known on the job which he left work to visit his uncle on one of the local brick yards.

John met Darney, who was a friend of his, and told Darney of the joys of the Shandaken job, and Darney who found that brickyard work did not agree with him, said that he would be glad to accompany John back to Shandaken.

They left the brickyard together Monday afternoon, but as it was hot and they did not "cover" much ground and as the shades of night fell both became tired and sleepy and picking out the most comfortable pile of lumber on the yard—some went pipe—they decided to enjoy a snooze.

It was their snooze that led to the depths of the law to their boudoir, and they spent the remainder of the night in the city hall lockup.

Unfortunately for John the judge had rather a good memory for faces and John confessed that he had faced the court on a somewhat similar charge about six weeks ago. At that time he had been given a chance to leave town with a warning to keep out. His neglect to heed the warning cost him a fine of $5 today, and unable to pay it he will be the county's guest for the five days.

His pal, Darney, was given half an hour to hit the Shandaken trail with the warning to never return.

J. L. Gibbons, of No. 81 Green street, arrested Monday evening by Officer Soper on a charge of speeding, pleaded guilty and was fined $5.

Joseph Netburn, arrested by Officer Paton for driving to the left side of a traffic stand, also pleaded guilty, and was fined $5.

There were no other cases in police court.

WHY

Why Rousseau Can Tell Truth About Himself.

The man who can tell the story of his own life in such a way as to give a picture of the age in which he lives is comparatively rare. "Uncle Dudley" writes in the Boston Globe. To be able, with only a strikingly candid and unadorned person can tell the truth about himself at all; the impulse to decent only the honesty and omit the vinegar is well nigh irresistible. Strongly religious men have given such testimony as an act of faith. The confessions of St. Augustine are one case in point, and those of Tolstoy are another. The autobiography of Rousseau, Collier is an equally striking example of an utterly irreligious man telling pretty much the whole story about himself—and, incidentally, giving us a vivid glimpse into the ways of life and thinking in the period of the Italian enlightenment—largely because Rousseau did not care a brass farthing what "people" thought. The diary of Samuel Pepys is an intimate view of a man's inside workings and into the life of his time (London in the seventeenth century) obtained quite by accident. "Pepys" kept his diary in a kind of shorthand of his own invention, and, feeling secure behind that screen, committed matters to writing which he might have hesitated to include had he known his diary would be exhumed, deciphered and published for the amusement, edification, education and instruction of later generations.

Rousseau's celebrated "Confessions," which left such an imprint on the minds of European thinkers, were undertaken as a deliberate act of intellectual honesty or propagandist fanaticism, according as you care to look at it.

George Meredith once wrote a novel called "The Egoist," in which he explored the secret recesses of male selfishness and vanity to such uttermost confines that no self-respecting male can read the book without flaming blazes at his own image. Meredith read the manuscript aloud to Robert Louis Stevenson, who was also a candid soul. Asked his opinion, Stevenson remarked:

"Of course, it is very fine. But was it quite fair of you to make such a liberal use of me in your portrait of an egoist?"

"I did not," said Meredith, with a smile. "The egoist is not you. He is—me," and the author tapped his own breast.

Which is a way of saying that the confession of one is, in great measure, the confession of all.

MUST HAVE PERFECT TEETH

Why It Is Important for Young Women to Look Well to That Requisite of Beauty.

No less an authority than Dr. Hollister, of the dental division of Pennsylvania state department of health, states that "the young woman of today if she wishes to retain the affections of a man must have a gleaming set of perfect teeth, because no young man cares to sit opposite a young woman whose teeth are crooked and ugly. Certainly no young woman can make the impression she desires if her teeth are a blemish on an otherwise attractive countenance," said Dr. Hollister. "What young man, no matter how much he may like a young woman, will long look at unsightly, ill-kept and crooked teeth without becoming indifferent to their owner? The young woman of today must have a set of gleaming teeth in her mouth and they must be regular and show the attention that their owner gives them. The young woman thus equipped either by nature or man's handiwork is the one best-fitted to retain the affections of a man."

Why Chemical Analysis Is Slow. Scientific methods have made such rapid strides in recent years that the public, ignorant of the difficulties of research work, has come to expect too much.

If a can of ox-tail soup were sent to a trained chemist for analysis of its chemical constituents, including spices, preservatives, and coloring matter, most chemists would expect him to produce a full report within twenty-four hours.

As a matter of fact, it would require a dozen chemists, working continuously upon the problem for a dozen years, in the best equipped laboratory, and they would use up tons of soap.—Popular Science Monthly.

Why Radium Is Expensive. Practice has shown that it is necessary to handle and treat something like 1,000,000 pounds of ore in order to recover a grain of radium. One ton of ore will seldom deliver more than six or seven milligrams of the radium element, or an amount of radium no larger than the size of a pin head. One authority figures that, including coal, water and chemicals, the producers must handle more than 3,000 tons of raw material to produce an ounce of the precious metal. No such effort has ever before been required to produce a speck of any single element.—World's Work.

Why Cooks Objected to Music. "Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Turbott, "the new cook is going to leave unless you quit playing the phonograph."

"Doesn't she like music?" "Yes, but she says there just isn't any of it on record a recipe for the new cook and works there at four till six that her wages will be."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SUN AND RIVER.

"Hello, River," said Mr. Sun.

"Hello, Sun," said the River.

"You don't have to go to bed, do you?" asked Mr. Sun.

"No, I do! But then it is all right, as I like to go to bed. I enjoy it and you can see that I'm not weeping tears about it; for I look so gay and so bright and so happy. I've had a birthday party this afternoon, and so I'm wearing my beautiful rose suit."

"In swimming," "No, I don't have to go to bed," said the River, "but I take many a rest. You've seen me looking very quiet and peaceful? That is when I am taking a rest."

"In the winter I often rest, too, when the ice King puts one of his best blankets over me and tells me he will attend to matters while I have a rest."

"But I don't go to sleep as you do, at just such a time, every day, as every afternoon."

"I'd like to have a talk with you," said Mr. Sun.

"And I'd like to have a talk with you," said the River.

"Just wait a moment," said Mr. Sun, "and I'll wear all my very best suit."

"Dear me, I'm honored," said the River.

Then in a few moments Mr. Sun was ready for his talk with the River.

He wore a gorgeous suit of deep rose color and a collar of deep rose and blue and lavender and pink clouds. He wore a hat of deep sky blue with rose colored band.

"Dear me, Mr. Sun, you are wonderful!" said the River.

"I am glad you think so," said Mr. Sun. "I don't know when I've dressed up so much. I must certainly am very dressy."

"And now, River, what is the news?"

"Well," said the River, smiling a little rippling smile, "I have had a great many boats going through me today. And some boys and girls have gone in swimming along near my banks."

"Some of the trees on the high hills above have changed into their summer green suits from the pale green spring ones they were wearing."

"The tug boats have made the usual amount of noise. What noisy little boats they are. One would think they were great big boats from the noise they make."

"But of course I know better. They can't fool the River! They're like creatures who don't amount to much who're always shouting and trying to make people think they do amount to something, because they praise themselves so much."

"Still, I'm fond of the tug boats, and they must make a noise. I suppose, so the big boats won't run them down!"

"There have been some lovely sail boats about today. How beautiful they are! The River loves them so."

"And there have been big passenger boats, for you know I'm a big, grown-up River, and I have lots of work to do."

"I know that," said the Sun.

So the River and the Sun talked and the Sun looked right down at the River as he talked.

And the River looked up at the face of the Sun, dressed in his very, very best, and smiled so gloriously.

People who were passing by the river exclaimed as they saw what they called Mr. Sun's going-to-bed time—a sunset.

No one who saw this sunset had ever seen a more beautiful one. For one portion of the sky was rose scarlet in color and the portion of the river below was of the same color.

For the river was very still and reflected the brightness of the sky just as a mirror will reflect or show one's face if one looks into it.

Never, never had people seen such a beautiful sunset. The colors seemed so wonderful that the people could hardly believe they were seeing something real. They just stood and watched until the Sun went to bed some time later, and the shadows came and the River grew dark once more.

But while the Sun was going to bed and while he gave of his glory to the beautiful River, people were saying that they lived in a world where there was so much beauty.

And when Mr. Sun had finished his talk with the River he said:

"Ah, lovely River, without you I could not have looked so fine!"

Admission Charged To View Wrecked Plane At Shandaken.

A fence has been constructed around the damaged aeroplane of Earl Rowe which fell at Shandaken last Wednesday while Mr. Rowe was taking an old school friend for a sail, and admission is being charged the visitors to view the machine.

Arrestor Rowe who is a former resident of Shandaken had been brought up by a De Havilland plane with which he was to make passenger flights during the summer at Fleischmanns. While engaged in flight at Shandaken his machine struck an air pocket while flying low and the plane crashed to the ground, striking a tree. The machine came to a halt on the edge of an excavation while the engine continued on, dropping out of the machine into the excavation. No one was hurt in the accident.

Couple Live Together With Speech Only When Necessary.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, July 19.—After nine years' silent sharing of the same apartment during which time neither spoke unless it became absolutely necessary, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Baumann today renewed their documentary agreement for another period of nine years.

Baumann is 76 and his wife is 45. In their difference in age he ascribes the original difficulties which led to their signing an agreement to live together, but never to speak when it could be avoided.

There are twelve Baumann children, six the offspring of a previous marriage.

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS.

When you have time to prepare a little extra dish the following will be well worth your trouble:

Hamburg Steak With Cabbage.—Wash and wipe dry the firm, crisp outside leaves from a head of cabbage. Prepare the steak by mixing with salt, pepper, a bit of clove and nutmeg as well as a little onion juice. Have the steak one-third sausage meat, make into small balls and brown in the frying pan until nicely browned, but not cooked through. Now wrap each ball in the cabbage leaf, skewer with tooth picks and place in a frying pan with a little boiling water. Cover closely and cook for half an hour or until the cabbage is tender. Serve with the gravy poured over the cakes. Tomato sauce is very good with this dish.

Quick Dessert.—A dessert which is quickly prepared, provided you have the ingredients, is this: Arrange squares of sponge cake on dessert plates, heap with sweetened and flavored whipped cream and on top of the cream place a canned apricot, round side up. It will look like a peach and taste like one.

Raspberry Sponge.—Fill an earthen bowl with layers of toasted bread and fresh raspberries, sprinkled with sugar. When the bowl is full, cover and put under a weight, let stand for two hours. Remove the weight and serve with a large spoon. Serve in cups, and over each pour sweetened cream to which some of the berry juice has been added.

Lemon Jelly With Peaches.—Mix a pound of lemon jelly, surround it on a platter and heap round it halves of uncooked peaches. Around the peaches heap, sweetened whipped cream, and serve with fruit. Other fruit, either fresh or canned, may be served in the manner.

Tuna Fish is a most delicious fish, one like chicken or turkey. It may be served as a salad or as a hot or cold dish, or in many ways. Tuna fish will occur to the purchaser of a can of the fish.

ASPHALT FIRE COST $1,000,000

Residents Near Linden and Across on Staten Island Spent Night of Terror From Exploding Stills and Tanks and Floating Flames.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 19.—Fire, which swept in flaming billows of oil across New Jersey pasture land and over Staten Island Sound, caused more than $1,000,000 damage and threatened the homes and property of thousands before it was finally under control early today. Starting with the explosion of a still in the Warner-Quinlan asphalt plant at Linden, N. J., the flames, fed by oil from neighboring tanks, spread and raged throughout the night.

Burning oil and asphalt poured into Staten Island Sound in a tidal wave four feet high, and swept down upon millions of dollars' worth of shipping, piers and plants along the shore. Part of the fiery wave broke itself upon Frail's Island, while firemen from a score of towns fought with huge booms to dam the flaming flood. Fifty shipping board vessels at Arlington were in peril.

Navigation for a mile around the danger points was stopped.

Fire tugs of the Standard Oil Company were used to fight the flaming oil waves during the night. Every available man along the flame-licked shores was called into service.

Scores of persons in the fire-swept area are ill today from the effect of acrid fumes inhaled during the conflagration.

After sweeping across a meadow land from the asphalt plant at Linden, the flames destroyed twelve stills in the vicinity and more than a dozen tanks. One of the last tanks exploded early today, shooting pillars of fire hundreds of feet into the air and hurling a great mass of blazing oil into the sound.

Rushing against wind and tide, the burning oil reached a point within fifty feet of Staten Island shore before it receded. Many inhabitants of the island fled, and all others kept an all-night vigil.

The $1,000,000 loss includes the destruction of the Warner-Quinlan plant, with thirty-four tanks and 200,000 barrels of crude and refined oil. Twenty of the tanks destroyed contained asphalt, which, burning, gave off almost poisonous fumes.

BUSINESS IN BIG N. Y. STORES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 19.—"Business is good," "Business is bad."

In an effort to ascertain whether the peak of business depression in retail trade has been passed, the International News Service today asked managers of some of the largest department stores in New York:

"How's business?"

The replies indicate a considerable difference of opinion, ranging all the way from "fine" down through "good" and "fair" to "rotten." Talking into consideration the inevitable summer slump, the fall in prices and the "tightness" of money, New York's leading retailers differ widely in their views on business conditions.

Among the larger department stores, the following were replied: McCrory's—"Business is bad. We have not only suffered a falling off in the number of our summer customers, but a large falling off in the amount of goods sold to each, while the real test—people are just not buying."

Lord & Taylor's—"Business is fine. We are doing 25 per cent more business than we did last summer, despite the lower prices, puts us ahead. Our sales are holding their own, too. Our regular customers are all buying as we know from our charge accounts."

Gimbel's—"Business is not up to last year, but we are fairly well satisfied. Lower prices force us to sell much more than before."

Macy's—"Week for week, we are ahead of last summer. There has been no noticeable change in our out of town trade, but our sales are coming along splendidly."

Rogers Peet & Co.—"Business is about the same as last year. It should be better to put us ahead."

Saks—"Conditions are slightly better this summer than during 1920."

What is important.

It does not matter how many, but how good, books you have.—Sims.

COOPERATION FARM SALVATION

Organized Selling Alone Will Save
New York Farmers, Shapiro Tells
Farm Bureau Federation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 19.—"Farmers' failures have been the farmers' fault,"

Joseph Shapiro, the brilliant young Californian economist, sent 100 county agents of the Farm Bureau Federation of New York back to their constituents on the farms today with this message ringing in their ears. The solution, Shapiro said, lies in co-operative distribution and merchandising.

"Don't blame the middleman, the retailer, or the producer," Shapiro said, speaking at a dinner given the agents by the North American Fruit Exchange at the Hotel Commodore.

"The fault is yours. Organize your selling. Advertise. Tell the public. Appeal are coming. Potatoes are coming. Buy now and buy in quantities and you can buy cheap."

The farmer's problem, according to Shapiro, is to so organize distribution that the retailer can sell with an eye to volume, not margin. When this is done, the farmer will get a fair price for his produce, and the consumer will get the produce at a fair price.

Every other industry in the world distributes on a co-operative basis, Shapiro said. Farming alone, the greatest of all industries, has been distributing on an individual basis. Farm produce has been dumped on the market in competition with itself, so that sometimes only 25 per cent reaches the consumer. The result is a shortage of food, high prices paid by the consumer, and loss to the farmer.

Shapiro declared emphatically that co-operative distribution and that alone was going to save the farmer of the United States from failure.

Hupmobile

There are four real questions when you buy a car—What will it cost to run? Will repairs be heavy? How long will it last? What will it bring when sold? If you get the same answers as the man who buys the Hupmobile, you can be sure you have not paid too much.

Hupmobile running economy is known to be truly exceptional.

Owners will tell you their repair bills are unusually light.

It is a fact that many Hupmobiles serve three or four long-time owners before they wear out.

Used car dealers all know the car commands a price above the average.

These things are true of the Hupmobile because it is built to last and to keep going on the minimum of outlay; and because they are true, the car is worth what it costs.

CLEANING UP A BERRY PATCH

It Can Usually Be Brought Back to Productive State by Careful, Judicious Pruning.

A patch of small fruit which has been allowed to grow as it will for a season or two is a tough proposition, but it can usually be brought back to a productive state by careful and judicious pruning.

Berries should be grown in rows. They should never be allowed to form a brauable patch and grow where they will. Sucker plants springing up from the roots of parent bushes is what causes them to form the brauable patches and it is likewise these sucker plants which so tax the roots that further production is an impossibility. During rows at least six feet apart in your patch, then grub out all the other plants and bushes. If you want to use them for additional planting the work can be done early in the spring while the canes are in dormant stage the roots transplanted to other rows.

But remove the sucker plants, grub them out and keep them out in the future by constant cultivation during the growing season.

The canes should all be cut back to six to eight inches in height as the growth of new canes encourages. Allow only three new canes to form to the bush and when they are two and one-half feet high, about the middle of the following summer, top them off with a hand sickle. This will stop any further growth in these canes, will make them strong and needy so that they will stand upright without lateral or support. It also causes later

By following this plan the old berry patch, unless it is hopelessly diseased, can be restored to productivity within one year. Getting a berry crop merely a question of pruning and winterkilling where fall or winter pruning is practiced is great because the open end of the cane permits the cane to travel down the soft center of the canes to the roots. That is why spring pruning is to be preferred. At this pruning, remove all dead canes from the previous season's fruiting canes and also thin down the fruiting canes to not more than three or four sturdy ones to each old established root stock. Quality berries are more than a quantity of inferior berries and these quality berries are produced only where the roots are not overworked.

Berries begin in a strong, sturdy condition by careful and systematic pruning and by constant cultivation. Just as we would cultivate the corn and wheat to produce the best crop, so will we cultivate the cane to produce the best crop.

"RED" SUCCESSSES
IN NEAR EAST

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, July 19.—A Reuter dispatch received here today states that the British minister at Teheran announces that large Russian forces are making fierce attacks in the region of Zangzur, devastating villages and leaving thousands of victims in their wake.

The British consul at Tabriz announces that the Bolsheviks have completely defeated the Armenians.

NEIRO HELD

As One Who Assailed Three White

Women, Killing One.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Baltimore, Md., July 19.—Identified, it is said, by Detective Sergeant

Harry B. Cockran, of Pittsburgh, as the man who last January assaulted and murdered a Mrs. Kirker, at her home in Cutter Milk Hollow, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh and later assaulted two other white women,

Joseph Thomas, alias Albert Williams, a negro, is held here today pending the arrival of extradition papers from Pennsylvania. A reward of $5,500 had been offered for the capture of the negro and this money will be divided among Baltimore policemen who made the arrest. Thomas was arrested after it is alleged he had robbed a residence in the fashionable Forest Park section of the city. Thomas, it is said, escaped from a hospital in Pittsburgh on February 7 last.

INVENTORS BUSY.

Patent Office Business Increases By Leaps and Bounds.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, July 19.—The American inventive mind was busy during the first six months of this year, no less than 45,000 applications for patents having been filed during that period, an increase of 42 1/2 per cent over the number for the first half of 1918, the patent office announced today. At the same time

3,269 applications for trade marks were filed.

In spite of the industrial depression the amount of business presented to every branch of the patent office has increased by leaps and bounds since 1918, the demands upon the office being beyond any previous figures in its history with no recession in sight, officials said.

Hearing on Blue Law Question.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, July 19.—The anti-blue law advocates are going to have a hearing before the house judiciary committee in opposition to a national Sunday observance law, which was recently urged by representatives of the Southern Methodist Church, it was announced today. The anti-blue hearing will be held the last week in July and efforts will also be made to secure a hearing before the senate judiciary committee and possibly the interstate commerce committee.

Ukrainian Peasants Suppressed.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, July 19.—The revolt of the peasants in Ukraine has been despatch from Moscow today. A

Riga despatch quotes M. Zinoviev, one of the leading communist chiefs in Russia as telling the Third International, "The Russian Communists must prepare for attacks from all sides."

Monday evening Joe Long's U. &
D. ball tossers easily defeated the Lace Mills in an Industrial Twilight League game at Athletic Field by a score of 9 to 0. The railroaders now head the league, having won two straight games. Bedford pitched for the Lace Mills while Spalt was on by hammering Morrison and Glazier mercilessly. Art Nehf pitched fine ball.

The Reds knocked the Phillies for a couple of goals, taking both ends of a double header by the same score 9 to 5.

Five Cardinal pitchers failed to stop the batin' Boston Braves who amassed sixteen hits and fourteen runs. Horners by Hornsby and Mc-Henry did the Cards little good.

Dutch Reuther was reinstated by Manager Wilbert Robinson, and was sent against the Cubs only to get a fine mauling. Ponder, recently acquired by Chicago from Pittsburgh in the Robertson deal, held the Dodgers to one run.

With a home run clout that travelled 560 feet inside the park and cleared the fence by 20 feet, Babe Ruth wrested the distance record from Harry Heilmann who recently clouted a 512 footer. The Yanks won in a canter.

Joe Sewell's triple helped the Indians trounce Washington.
Kerr and Hodge pitched fine ball for the White Sox and Chicago took two from Boston.

LOTS OF BOXING
BOUTS THIS FALL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, July 19.—The autumn is going to be a luscious thing in a little way.

Tex Rickard, the promotin'est person Pistiana ever knew has today clinched a match between Tom Gibbons, the battlin' "Mick" from St. Paul, and Georges Carpentier, who has promised to come back to America in September.

The Gibbons-Carpentier match is slated for October and while Rickard favors Columbus Day, no definite date has been set.

Prior to the bout between the flashy light-heavyweights Jack Dempsay will very likely be seen in action once again. The world's champion is in a receptive mood and would readily accept a nice fat percentage for taking on Bill Brennan or some other battler on Labor Day.

Rickard is considering this match and may make it, but he is non-committal on the subject as yet.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, the Benton Harbor promoter, is here angling for the signatures of Jack Kearns and Leo Flynn, managers of Dempsay and Brennan. Fitzsimmons has an alluring proposition on his chest and may land the match.

Tommy McInty, Cleveland promoter, is also in town angling for matches. He hopes to land Tom Gibbons for a match in the Forest
City on Labor Day and may close with Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons some time today.

Kane's contract with Rickard leaves Gibbons free to box any one he chooses on Labor Day or at any time prior to several weeks before the Carpentier bout, which will very likely be staged in Madison Square Garden.

The uncertainty of October weather in the Metropolitan district and the gamble promoter Rickard would have to take were he to stage the match in Jersey City makes it practically sure that Tommy and Georges will battle indoors. Rickard can be sure of what the match will amount to in the garden. He knows it will pack the house to the roof, as it is even more popular from several angles than was Carpentier's match with Dempsay.

Give Soldiers Outing.
The ladies of the Aid Society of the Temple Emanuel gave the soldier boys who are enjoying the Kaush

Evening's Freeman stated Mrs. Mar-

Ancient Ideas About Toads.
"A toad is a member of venomous frog," so an ancient writer informed his readers. "In the right side of each frog is a bone that could boiling water if it be thrown into it, and the toad cannot be rebated unless the bone is first removed. Toads infest sage leaves with their poison. It is never safe to eat unwashed sage leaves in consequence. If you put a toad into a new earthen pot and bury it in a cornfield, there still be no harmful tempers or miasms there."

Presently the driver of the cab in which the bag had been left arrived, bringing the bag intact. The owner presented him with a ticket for a meal
